IMPORTANT NOTICE

It is with a great deal of disappointment and frustration to find Family Tree Maker (FTM) software has not lived up to my expectations to create a proper Book of the Thibodeau Family. This was only discovered when I went to Publish a previous work and found FTM could not handle the size. You will, therefore, find a Book that is far from perfect. I seriously considered not making my work available to others. But in the end, considering years of research and countless hours of entering information into FTM's software, I felt an imperfect Book was better than no Book at all. Although FTM states in their Guide Book that one can add as many pages as needed, they fail to mention that they mean in creating the Book only in their software. When it comes time to put the Book in PDF (printable form to share with others), FTM software cannot handle the transformation. A call to FTM confirmed this and I was forced to divide this Book into two Volumes. By doing so, the family history provided in this CD does not flow well. You must go to the various Volumes, rather than simply visit one Table of Contents or thumb through an entire Book. You can go to a copy centre and have the CD printed, which will make thumbing through much easier, but there will still be two Table of Contents. If one is considering printing the entire Book, might I suggest using 28# paper and 2-side copying to reduce paper usage, volume, and cost. Also, the software does not have the ability to wrap text around photos, which posed a terrible problem, and I ended up having to do some manipulations, which will show up in mis-matched text. At some point, I may try to redo, should health and time permit. I have listed each Volume's content here and inside the jewel case pamphlet in hopes that it will be a bit easier to find what you are seeking. Although I have indicated in Volume I that I would like to make future additions, now that the software has limitations, I may not be able to do so. However, I still encourage you to send information along and I shall do my best to add it in what I hope is a future update to this First Edition - if not by me, then hopefully, by another.

Treasure Your Rich Acadian Heritage

Acknowledgements

My deepest appreciation goes to everyone who has assisted me in the sometimes daunting but always satisfying task of searching for names and stories of my daughters' and grandchildren's ancestors and contemporaries. I could not have done it without each and every one of you. I am grateful for your assistance and kindness.

A special thanks goes to Anne Chamberland, Acadian Archive Specialist, University of Maine, Fort Kent. You have given of your time to assist me in the challenging quest to bring my daughters' ancestors alive.

Many thanks, as well, to: Deborah (Thibodeau) Brown, Jefferson, ME; Jeff Goding, Marshfield, ME; Darrell McBeairty, Allagash, ME; Elise (Thibodeau) Marshall, Camden, ME; Brandy (Martin) Plourde, Embden, ME; John Thibodeau, Rockland, ME.

My hours of conversations with fellow voyager Jeff Goding and nephew (may I call you that?) have been more enjoyable than he will ever know.

Thanks, also, to all those nameless folks in town/city offices, libraries, and organizations who, in fleeting moments, willingly moved me along the system.

My apologies to any folks whose names I have misplaced.

I would also like to acknowledge the vital role played by the Internet. This technology allowed me the opportunity to browse through census records, family research files, immigration and passenger lists, books and much more. I have been able to communicate with individuals and connect with others that I, otherwise, would not have known. The Internet has been an incredible tool and without it, my research would have been very limited and much more time-consuming. It has, also, led me to some wonderful people - both dead and alive!!

Preface

I have spent several decades doing research on my family and decided that I should also do an abbreviated study of my daughters' paternal side so that they and my grandchildren will know a bit about the Thibodeau family history, as well as other direct lines associated with it.

It has turned out to be an interesting journey and I found myself traveling back much further than intended - as genealogists often do. I discovered the Thibodeau side has a rich Acadian heritage and one worth telling to my family. It turns out that much has been written about many of the lines in this family, perhaps because they have been recorded since first landing in Acadia in the 1600s. I am sure there are other related families that also go back to the first settlements that are not mentioned within these pages.

Much, if not all, of my work will be donated to the Acadian Archives at the University of Maine, Fort Kent to add, if they so choose, to their collection of the Thibodeau and Oakes families. My desire is to have my research, imperfect as it surely will be, available to all who wish to pursue their family lines and add to their treasured heritage.

Introduction

This booklet has been a side-journey for me, intended only to provide my daughters with a glimpse of their paternal heritage. It has grown beyond that intended purpose. Like any addiction, once the family scribe starts recording history, it is difficult to stop - so many remarkable people start peeking out from the past and begin tugging at your shirt-sleeves!

It has been a difficult decision deciding how far back I should travel and which lines to include in some detail. Others have done research on the early families (some with and some without sources), so I initially felt I should go only from present-day to Fabien Thibodeau and wife Sarah Christine Oakes and provide sources accordingly. In the end, I included any early immigrants I found during my research, which, it turns out, were more than expected. However, my concentration remained on the Thibodeau and Oakes lines. I chose the Thibodeau's for obvious reasons - my daughters carry the name; the Oakes because the Thibodeau's married into the family at a point where some researchers stopped. In the end, I simply wanted my family to know as many of these amazing people as possible.

The history of the Thibodeau family provided by the Acadian Archives Department at the University of Maine, Fort Kent started with immigrant Pierre Thibodeau in 1654 and continued to my line of interest - Fabien and Sarah (Oakes) Thibodeau. Sources for families prior to Fabien and Sarah will not be provided to a large degree, although I found myself adding more than intended. Although I realize that this is not a good way to do family research, it was a decision I made. Was it better to go with only a few people and facts where I could enter sources or provide more family members with and without sources as a guide/clue for other researchers to follow? I, obviously, chose the latter, although it was not an easy decision to make. However, it quickly became apparent that this could turn into a life-long project if I didn't make some changes to my research. I found myself getting deeply involved as more and more information came to light. Since I had to get back to my own expansive maternal line, I quickly realized I could not continue to add sources; otherwise I would never complete this journey. With the many books providing excellent information, along with family organizations, information is readily available to anyone interested in pursuing their direct family lines and, hopefully, I have provided enough information to make that possible. I strongly urge those interested, to pursue Acadian history, as there are many books and other resources available. It must never be forgotten.

I have done my utmost not to include birth dates of living individuals. Unfortunately, my software program has a few glitches and will sometimes note them even when they are marked as private. For this reason, I have produced only one report - the Outline Descendant Report, which appears to keep its integrity in not displaying births of living individuals.. Those reports will include everyone. Should anyone wish for more information on an individual, please feel free to contact me and I am happy to email whatever else I have, as well as Sources, if available.

One will note surname changes and spelling variations-not an uncommon occurrence.

Old Acadian Names

Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and parts of Quebec and Maine were all once Acadia. Quebec was once considered New France. It is difficult to mark the exact boundary between Acadia and the Province of Maine, claimed by the Massachusetts Bay Colony, for it kept changing during the many disputes over the land. North and east of the Penobscot River appears to be the best description, although the Kennebec River was at times the boundary, as well - the Acadian territory was very fluid!

Prince Edward Island was first inhabited by the Mi'kmaq people who called the island Epekwitk but it was called Abegweit by the new settlers. After 1713, the French called it Ile Saint-Jean. In 1763, the British changed the name to St. John's Island and in 1769, it became its own province. In 1799, it became Prince Edward Island.

New Brunswick was first inhabited by Maliseet and Mi'kmaq peoples and was part of early Nova Scotia. The new settlers were discontented with the government in Halifax, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick became its own province in 1784.

As noted earlier, there was much contention surrounding the border between Maine and New Brunswick, which is a fascinating read and provides insights on both sides. The War of 1812 and the Webster-Ashburton Treaty are 'must reads' for anyone interested in understanding how people are treated during such instances. Citizens who were in one country one day found themselves in another country the next - which also changed their citizenship. Too lengthy to discuss here, I will greatly simplify by noting only "The Aroostook War" took place from 1838-1839 due to this border dispute. It was an 'incident' rather than a 'war', as no combat or engagement took place. In 1842, a diplomatic resolution - Webster-Ashburton Treaty - settled the boundary and is as we see it today.

Dykes

Upon arriving in what is now Nova Scotia, the Acadians devised a system of drainage ditches, which they built along the outer marsh areas and required a tremendous amount of community work. The ditches, called dykes, combined with an ingenious one-way water gate called an aboiteau. The aboiteau was a hinged valve in the dyke which allowed fresh water to run off the marshes at low tide but which prevented salt water from flowing onto the farmland as the tide rose. Sometimes these dykes were built by driving five or six rows of logs into the ground, laying other logs one on top of the other between these rows, filling all the spaces between the logs with well packed clay and then covering everything over with sod cut from the marsh itself. Other dykes were built by simply laying marsh sod over mounds of earth. After letting snow and rain wash away the salt from the marshes for two to four years, the Acadians were left with fertile soil which yielded abundant crops.

Le Grand Derangement of the Acadians

The French colony of Acadia was founded in 1604, 50 years prior to the first Thibodeau, Pierre, landing on its shores. It covered what is now Nova Scotia (NS) and parts of New Brunswick (NB), Prince Edward Island (PEI) and Maine (ME). The territory was a perennial battle ground for the French and British.

After the British conquest of Acadia in 1710, the 1713 Treaty of Utrecht allowed the Acadians to keep their lands. Over the next forty-five years, however, the Acadians refused to sign an unconditional oath of allegiance to Britain; some of them being Pierre Thibodeau's descendants, although several did put signature to paper. During the same period, the Acadians maintained supply lines to the French fortresses of Louisbourg and Fort Beausejour. One of those suppliers to the fort at Louisbourg in Cape Breton in 1721-1723 was an ancestor Michel Hache-Gallant with his sloop La Miscoudine. He had been the first white settler at Port Lajoie, in now PEI.

The following Oath of Allegiance entries are being entered here, although first immigrant Pierre was not involved, as he had died in 1704. The rational - putting it here negates the need to repeat the entry in each of the sons involved and in some cases, the grandsons. Information universal to other Thibodeau family members have been entered in the same manner.

In December 1729 around the Port Royal, NS area, the Oath of Allegiance to King George II of England was being mandated. Among those taking the oath were 5 of immigrant Pierre's sons - Antoine, Jean Baptiste, Pierre (likely 2nd son of that name), Michel, and Claude. However, in 1731, Michel and Claude refused to have their property surveyed.

In April 1730, the Oath of Allegiance was being mandated in outlying areas of NS (Mines, Grand Pre, Cobequit, Pisiquit, and Beaubassin) and those taking the Oath were 2nd and 3rd generations of the Thibodeau family. Names found with various surname spellings: Pierre Thibodo, Alex Tibodo, René Tibodo, Jean Baptiste Thibodeau, Piere Tibodo, Phillipe Thibodo, Joseph Tibodo, Antoine Thibodo, Jean Tibodo son of Charles, Jermain Tibodo son of Francis, J.B. Tibodo, Anth Tibodo, Pierre Tibodo. In November 1730, Jean Tibodo and Paul Thibodeau were added to the list.

Maine was not immune to the events during the early settlement years, although the land was not known as Maine. Its ownership had shuffled back and forth between New France and Massachusetts, while, of course, its true ownership was the Native American. The Mi'kmaq and the Maliseet raided numerous New England villages, sometimes being egged on by the French and sometimes due to the actions of the English settlers themselves. By the end of April 1755, they had raided Gorham, killing two men and a family. Next they appeared in New Boston, now Gray and went through the neighboring towns destroying the plantations. On May 13, they raided Frankfort, now Dresden, where two men were killed and a house burned. The same day they raided Sheepscot, now Newcastle, and took five prisoners. Two people were killed in North Yarmouth on May 29 and one taken captive. The natives shot one person at Teconnet, probably today's China, took prisoners at Fort Halifax and two prisoners at Fort Shirley (Dresden). They also captured two workers at the fort at New Gloucester. On August 13, 1758, 400 soldiers, including Acadians, marched to Fort St George, now Thomaston, and unsuccessfully laid siege to the town and they raided Munduncook, now Friendship, where they wounded eight British settlers and killed others.

Le Grand Derangement of the Acadians also known as the Expulsion of the Acadians, the Great Upheaval, and the Great Expulsion began in August 1755 and continued for nine years. It was the forced removal by the British of the French Acadian people from Acadie in New France, now known as the Maritime Provinces –PEI, NS, and NB. The British first deported the Acadians to the Thirteen Colonies and later to Britain and France. It is estimated that close to 12,000 in total were deported – over half to the Thirteen Colonies and the remainder to Britain and France. Thousands died, mainly from diseases from conditions of crowding and ill treatment on board ships and drowning from ships lost at sea, along with outright killings such as the "Ste Anne's Massacre" on February 18, 1759, at Sainte-Anne des Pays-Bas, now Fredericton, NB, where barns were set to torch with animals still inside.

During the 9 years of the expulsion, Acadians, along with the Wabanaki Confederation, with whom they had a relationship, continued guerilla warfare against British aggression. However, the British conquered the fort at Louisbourg, weakened the Acadian and Mi'kmaq militias and devastated the French Acadian population. The leader of the Acadian militia on the St. John River Joseph Godin-Bellefontaine refused to swear an oath despite the torturing and killing of members of his family in front of him. Could Godin-Bellefontaine be a relative of current-day Thibodeau descendants; the children of Walter Goding and Erma Thibodeau?

The British sought to eliminate any future military threat posed by the Acadians and to permanently cut the supply lines they provided to Louisbourg by removing them from the area. By that time Michel Hache-Gallant had died. Without making distinctions between the Acadians who had been neutral and those who had resisted the occupation of Acadia, the British Governor and Council ordered them all to be expelled.

The first wave of the expulsion began at Chignecto, NS and then moved to Grand-Pre, Piziquid (present-day Windsor area), and Annapolis Royal, NS on August 10, 1755. Although Pierre Thibodeau had died 51 years earlier, some of his descendants still occupied land in these areas. On November 17, 1755, 700 British troops, attacked twenty houses at Memramcook, NB, arrested the remaining Acadians and killed two hundred head of livestock to deprive the French of supplies. Those Acadians who tried to escape the expulsion by retreating to the St. John, Petitcodiac and Miramichi rivers were rounded up in later campaigns. The initial Acadians were deported to the Thirteen British colonies. In many instances, fathers were deliberately separated from their families. Their homes and barns burned to the ground and their animals slaughtered.

Most Acadian exiles were assigned to rural communities in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland and South Carolina. In general, they refused to stay where they were put and large numbers migrated to the colonial port cities where they gathered in isolated, impoverished French-speaking Catholic neighborhoods – the sort of communities Britain's colonial officials tried to discourage. More worryingly for the British authorities, some Acadians threatened to migrate north to French-controlled regions, including the Saint John River, Cape Breton, the coasts of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and other 'out-backs' in Canada. Because the British believed their policy of sending the Acadians to the Thirteen Colonies had failed, they were deported elsewhere during the second wave of the Expulsion.

For four long winter months, about 2,000 Acadians were not allowed to disembark at Massachusetts and as a result, half died of cold, starvation and disease aboard the ships. The mind's eye can see the squalid, inhumane conditions. It is likely they were kept below deck, packed in like sardines. The rolling seas must have made many seasick and remnants of vomit must have been everywhere. Women and young girls could not attend to their menstrual cycles, which must have been horrific. The constant crying and moaning of the frightened, hungry and sick must have been unbearable. Close quarters would have putrefied the air and illness would have spread quickly. The dead would have been discarded like old bones that they would soon become. Surviving children were taken away from their parents and were distributed to various families throughout Massachusetts and parts of what is now Maine. Man's inhumanity to man is always difficult to fathom. The government also arranged the adoption of orphaned children and provided subsidies for housing and food for a year. Some citizens in some Massachusetts towns, such as Marshfield, were against Acadians being indentured if they were willing to work. One being Caleb Tilden, who would be later found as a distant cousin of the MacDonald siblings of Camden, ME who are acquaintances of descendants of the first Thibodeau Acadian settler, Pierre.

Approximately 1000 Acadians sent to Maryland lived in what became known as French Town. The Irish Catholics were reported to have shown charity to the Acadians by taking orphaned children into their homes.

Connecticut prepared for the arrival of 700 Acadians. Like Maryland, the Connecticut legislature declared that the Acadians be made welcome, helped and settled under the most advantageous conditions, or if they had to be sent away, measures be taken for their transfer - or so told by history.

Pennsylvania accommodated 500 Acadians. Because they arrived unexpectedly, they had to remain in port on their vessels for months. The sloops Hannah, Three Friends, and Swan arrived in Delaware on November 18 & 20, 1755 with 161 people who had been on the vessels since September. They had disembarked on Province Island, as there were health dangers. They were dispersed to Philadelphia, Bucks, Chester and Lancaster Counties suffering miserably from smallpox. One of these exiles was a direct descendant of current-day John Alphonse Thibodeau of Rockland, ME, whose 4th great-grandfather was born in Philadelphia. His parents later made their way to Quebec, where the family settled and died. John's ancestors would remain in Quebec until his grandfather, Joseph Alphonse Thibodeau, immigrated to Rumford, ME in the early 1900s.

The Thibodeau's and the other exiles who were shipped to Virginia endured a terrible fate, perhaps more difficult than the other refugees deported from Minas in the fall of 1755. In mid-November, when five transports appeared unexpectedly at Hampton Roads, the Virginia Governor protested their deportation to his colony without his consent. While they were detained at Williamsburg, hundreds died from disease and malnutrition aboard the filthy, crowded, anchored ships while the Virginia authorities pondered their fate - apparently without conscience. Finally, Acadians from one vessel were moved up to Richmond, two of the vessels were unloaded at Hampton, and two more at Norfolk. A hand full of young Acadians managed to slip away and trek overland through fields and forests and across the mountains to French Canada, but most of the exiles remained in Virginia. Finally, in the spring of 1756, Virginia's House of Burgesses made its decision – the Acadians must leave. In May, the first shipment of Acadians in hired vessels left for England, and in two weeks all of them had gone--299 to Bristol, 250 to Falmouth, 340 to Southampton, and 336 to Liverpool--1,225 of the original 1,500. Their ordeal only worsened in the English ports, where they were grossly neglected and treated like common criminals. By 1763, more than half of them were dead.

The Acadians who had offered the most resistance to the British—especially those who had been at Chignecto, NS—were reported to have been sent furthest south to the Carolinas and Georgia, where about 1,400 Acadians settled and were subsidized and put to work on plantations. The majority of the Acadians in Georgia received passports from the Governor, for without such passports, travel between borders was not allowed.

Some Acadians made their way back home and along the way, some were captured and imprisoned. Less than half of those who had begun the voyage survived. The South Caroline Gazette reported that about thirty Acadians fled the island to which they were confined and escaped their pursuers. Alexander Broussard, brother of the famed resistance leader Joseph Broussard, dit Beausoleil, was among them. Alexander and Joseph married sisters Marguerite and Agnes Thibodeau, respectively, daughters of Michel Thibodeau and Agnes Dugas. These Thibodeau's were ancestors to the first Acadian Thibodeau settler, Pierre. It is said the four died in Louisiana. Charles Thibodeau, the youngest son of Pierre, first Acadian Thibodeau settler, and his wife Jean Terriau died at Port Lajoie, PEI in August 1756 during Le Grand Dérangement. His widow and children were deported. Two of their sons, Olivier and Amand Thibodeau followed Joseph Broussard dit Beausoleil to Louisiana in February 1765.

The second wave of the expulsion began with the French defeat at Louisbourg, Cape Breton on July 26, 1758, with 5,600 French and 500 English casualties - many due to illness rather than combat. Many of the Acadians who had initially fled to PEI, Cape Breton, the northern parts of NB and into Quebec were rounded up during this second wave and were either imprisoned or deported.

Thousands were deported; no longer to the British colonies but to Britain and France. Some would later migrate to Louisiana. The PEI campaign resulted in the largest percentage of deaths of the deported Acadians. In 1758, the sinking of the transport ships Violet (with about 280 persons aboard), Duke William (with over 360 persons aboard) and the Ruby (with about 350 aboard) marked the highest number of fatalities during the expulsion. Some on board were descendants of Pierre Thibodeau, first settler of that surname to Acadia.

Of those deported to Britain, most landed at Bristol, Falmouth, Southampton and Liverpool. Their condition only worsened in English ports, as many were kept in crowded warehouses and neglected. Plaques were not uncommon due to their harsh treatment. A few of the more fortunate were allowed to join communities and live somewhat normal lives. By 1763, more than half of the 1250 were dead. In May 1763, the French and British governments came to an agreement - the Acadians in England, including the Thibodeau's were repatriated to France.

In France, the most serious resettlement attempt was made by Louis XV, who offered 2 acres of land per family in the Poitou province, which tradition says is the home of first Acadian Thibodeau settler, Pierre, and a memorial to him in Pre-Rhonde NS notes that sentiment. The land was infertile and by 1775, most had abandoned the province. Acadians left France to settle in Louisiana, which was then a colony of Spain, and some chose to take oaths of allegiance to the Spanish government. The British did not deport Acadians to Louisiana, as is often believed. Some were sent to colonize places as diverse as French Guiana and the Falkland Island but these efforts appear to have been unsuccessful. Others migrated to places like Saint-Dominique, now Haiti, but the oppressive heat and the Haitian Revolution caused most to flee to New Orleans.

The Acadians soon became the largest ethnic group in Louisiana. They initially settled the areas along the Mississippi River, later in the Atchafalaya Basin and in the prairie lands to the west—a region later renamed Acadiana. During the 19th century, as Acadians reestablished their culture, "Acadian" evolved into "Cadien", then to the now familiar identifier "Cajun".

Some of the early Thibodeau's who settled in Acadia and became prominent families there were among those earliest Acadians to seek refuge in Louisiana. Three Thibodeau families: one led by a widow, five Thibodeau wives, and several individuals--19 members of the family in all, including several newborns--reached New Orleans in February 1765 with the large party from Halifax via Cap-Français, St. Domingue, now Haiti, led by their kinsmen Alexander and Joseph Broussard dit Beausoleil, who had married granddaughters of Pierre Thibodeau, the family's progenitor. After a brief respite in the city, the Thibodeau's followed the Broussard brothers to the Attakapas District, where they helped create La Nouvelle-Acadie (New Acadia) on the banks of Bayou Teche. Marguerite Thibodeau, age 60, came with her husband Alexandre Broussard dit Beausoleil, age 66, of Petitcoudiac (now in NB), and their four children, ages 14-24. In the fall of 1765, Marguerite and Alexandre were victims of the epidemic in Boyou Teche settlement. She died in early September, two weeks before he died and she was buried at 'the camp lower down', which is now Fausse Pointe. It is likely Alexandre is buried there, as well.

In Bayou Teche, four Thibodeau's started family lines in what became St. Martin, St. Landry, Lafayette, Vermilion, and Acadia parishes. Another cousin settled on the Opelousas prairie south of the present-day city and created his line, as well. Three more Thibodeau's came in 1765 and settled on the river at Cabanoce/St Jacques but only one of the lines survived in what became known as St. James Parish. In 1767 and 1768, Thibodeau's from Maryland settled on the river but none were males. In 1785, about 24 more Thibodeau family members came to the colony aboard ships from France. One created a vigorous line in what became West Baton Rouge Parish, although most chose to settle on upper Bayou Lafourche. The Thibodeau's stretched all the way down to Terrebonne Country. By the War Between the States, at least one Thibodeaux from Terrebonne parish moved to the Brashear City (now Morgan City) area on the Lower Atchafalaya. More Thibodeaux's left the Lafourche/Terrebonne valley and resettled on the southwestern prairies or in St. James Parish.

No non-Acadian Thibodeau's appear in Louisiana church records during the early colonial period, so it would appear that all those registered were from the line of the first immigrant to Nova Scotia - Pierre Thibodeau. Thibodeau's would become Thibodeaux's.

The American poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow memorialized the historic event in his poem about the plight of the fictional character Evangeline. Tradition says that the old man in the poem is Rene LeBlanc. If that is so, he had a connection to the Thibodeau family. But then, it seems, all Acadians had some connection to one another.

On July 11, 1764, the British government passed an order-in-council to permit Acadians to legally return to British territories, provided that they take an unqualified oath of allegiance. Some Acadians returned to Nova Scotia (which included present-day New Brunswick). Under the deportation orders, Acadian land tenure had been forfeited to the British crown and the returning Acadians no longer owned land. Beginning in 1760, much of their former land was distributed under a grant to New England planters and more can be read about the transfer of the land at Thibodeau Settlement in Nova Scotia under the story of Pierre Thibodeau elsewhere in this booklet. The lack of available farmland compelled many Acadians to seek out a new livelihood as fishermen on the west coast of Nova Scotia, known as the French Shore. The British authorities scattered other Acadians in small groups along the shores of the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Saint Lawrence. It was not until the 1930s, with the advent of the Acadian co-operative movements, that the Acadians became less economically disadvantaged. A long time to wait!

By the end of the Grand Derangement, several generations of the Thibodeau family were scattered around the world.

Source for the following regarding deportation of the Thibodeau and family to Massachusetts: www.sec.state.ma.us/ArchivesSearch/RevolutionarySearch.aspx

1760-61: French neutrals in Reading, MA for removal to Boston, MA; on that list Thibodeau - Elisabeth, John, Joseph, Margaret, Mary, Moses, Paul (all spelled Tibbedo in parenthesis)

1764: Report of expenses of French neutrals residing in Boston but assigned to other towns: on that list John Thibodeau (spelled Tibbedo)

1764, Dec 1: Draft in French by French neutrals requesting passport wishing to emigrate to St. Domingue (Haiti); no action noted; on that list John and Charles Thibodeau (spelled Thibodat)

1765, Mar 19: Report of support for French neutrals; on that list John Thibodeau (Tibbedo)

1766, Jun 2: Petition in French seeking to emigrate to Quebec claiming the wish to take Oath of Fidelity; no action noted; on that list Jean Thibodeau (Thibodot) with autograph.

Note: At this time, I am calling the Jean in the deportation records above as Jean Baptiste Thibodeau whose wife is Marie LeBlanc and whose parents are Jean Thibodeau and Marguerite Hebert.

Note: Although no action is noted regarding the 1766 petition, it appears that the Jean Baptiste Tibaud [sic] family left MA and arrived in Quebec 1766-1767, per U.S. and Canada Passenger and Immigration List Index, 1500s-1900s (found on ancestry.com) and the family is found in Madawaska, NB after that date. The fly in the ointment is that the Quebec Genealogical Dictionary of Canadian Families (Tanguay Collection), 1608-1890, pg 290, under 1703 notes that Jean Thibaudeau of St. Charles, Acadie and wife Marie Le Blanc, Acadienne had 2 children who married in Quebec in 1765 – daughter Judith married 23 Sep 1765 Paul Poitier at St Anne-de-la-Pocatière and son Olivier married Paul's sister Madeleine Poitier on the same date. It would, however, not be unusual to get years incorrect so the Thibodeau arrival to Quebec could have been in 1765 rather than 1766-1767, although unlikely or the year of marriage could have been off by a year. Further investigation is warranted.

Other Thibodeau Ancestors and Relatives Who Were Deported Although there were many more Jean Baptiste Thibodeau (1731) married 1753 M. Anne Francoise Babin in Grand Pre, NS; deported during le Grand Derangement; later removed to and died 1823 in Madawaska, NB. Jean Baptiste is the great-grandson of immigrant Pierre Thibodeau and wife Jeanne Theriau.

On a personal website regarding the deportation of the Thibodeau families, Jean Thibodeau, wife Marguerite Hebert and children, Paul, Joseph, Marie, Elisabeth and grand-daughter Marie Hebert were noted as being deported to Massachusetts. Nine in all arrived from Acadia and ended up living in Reading, MA - all except sons Jean and Moses who lived "near Boston". This cannot be correct as Jean Baptiste and wife Marguerite Hebert died prior to the deportation, according to Cyr. Some say she died in Canada; others say in Louisiana. However, if she did die between 1623-26, she would not be in Louisiana at that time, as the likely date she would have been there would be several years after 1755 making her at least age 75. Since a number of Hebert's were deported, the Marguerite that died in Louisiana could have been a younger relative. Jean died 1746 and is the son of immigrant Pierre Thibodeau and wife Jeanne Theriau.

Rene LeBlanc 1684-1758, Philadelphia, Delaware, PA. The Canadian Genealogy Index says Rene died 1732 in St. Charles des Mines, Grand Pre, Acadia while others say he died 1758 in Philadelphia, PA and was married 3 times. It is also said that he had 3 children by his 1st wife; 17 children by his 2nd wife (Marguerite Thibodeau) and she gave him 1 set of triplets and 3 sets of twins; and 3 by his 3rd wife. It is said he was a notary and collaborated with the English but got deported anyway. Longfellow's

Evangeline mentions old Rene LeBlanc as dying in Pennsylvania (deported in 1755) and it is said that he is Rene son of Rene and Anne. If this is correct, than he did not die in 1732 as the Canadian Genealogy Index notes. He is connected to the Thibodeau family.

Brigitte Breau, widow of Charles Thibodeau, came with at least three children--Jean-Anselme, called Anselme, age 15, Anne dite Nanette, age 10, and Marie-Louise, age 3. Brigitte also was a victim of the epidemic of 1765. Her children survived and remained in the Attakapas District. Her daughters married into the Dugas and Louviere families. Her son married twice and settled on Bayou Vermilion. Daughter Marie-Louise, wife of François Louvière, died at Attakapas in December 1796, in her early 30s. Anne dite Nanette, wife of Pierre Dugas, died at her home near the bridge at La Butte, St. Martin Parish, in November 1817, in her early 60s. Charles died about 1765 and is the grandson of immigrant Pierre Thibodeau and wife Jeanne Theriau.

Paul Thibodeau of Port-Royal, age 37, came with wife Rosalie Guilbeau, age 24, son André-Paul, age unrecorded, and Anne Thibodeau of Pigiguit, NS age unrecorded, probably an orphaned cousin. Paul and Rosalie had more children in Louisiana. Paul died in 1805 and is the grandson of immigrant Pierre Thibodeau and wife Jeanne Theriau.

Olivier Thibodeau of Chepoudy, age 32, Paul's first cousin, came with wife Madeleine Broussard, age unrecorded, and four children--stepdaughters Anne and Isabelle Landry, age 11 and unrecorded, daughter Marie, age 2, and son Théodore, age 1. Madeleine was pregnant when they reached Louisiana. Daughter Marguerite-Anne was born on the Teche in May--the first recorded Acadian birth west of the Atchafalaya Basin. Daughter Marie, wife of Joseph Sonnier, died at her home at La Butte, St. Martin Parish, in June 1815, in her early 50s; her succession record was filed at the St. Martinville courthouse the following January. Olivier died in 1803 and is the grandson of immigrant Pierre Thibodeau and wife Jeanne Theriau.

Amand Thibodeau of Chipoudy, NS, age 31, Olivier's brother, same with his fiancé Gertrude Bourg of PEI, age 16, whom he married at New Orleans on February 17, 1765; the first recorded Acadian wedding in Louisiana. They had many children on upper Bayou Teche. Amand died 1818 and is the grandson of immigrant Pierre Thibodeau and wife Jeanne Theriau.

Élisabeth, or Isabelle, Thibodeau, age 27, came with husband Charles dit Lasers Pellerin of Port-Royal, age 35. She became pregnant on the voyage to Louisiana. Her daughter was born on the Teche in August or September 1765. Élisabeth remarried to fellow Acadian Joseph Martin at Attakapas in c1770. Relationship to Pierre Thibodeau and wife Jeanne Theriau unknown, although there is one.

Marie Thibodeau, age 25, came with husband Pierre Surette of Petitcoudiac, age unrecorded, and a 3-year-old daughter. Marie also became pregnant on the voyage to Louisiana. Her son was born on the Teche in June 1765. Marie remarried to Jean-Baptiste, son of fellow Acadian Germain Semer of Grand-Pré, at Attakapas in c1768 and died at her home at La Grand Pointe on upper Bayou Teche in July 1810, age 70. Marie is the sister to Amand and Olivier Thibodeau and the granddaughter to Pierre Thibodeau and wife Jeanne Theriau.

Madeline Thibodeau, age 15, probably an orphan, came alone. She married Jean Athanase, son of fellow Acadian Michel Trahan, probably at Attakapas in the late 1770s. Relationship to Pierre Thibodeau and wife Jeanne Theriau unknown, although there is one.

Baptiste Thibodeau, age unrecorded, came alone. Relationship to Pierre Thibodeau and wife Jeanne Theriau unknown, although there is one.

Catherine Thibodeau, age unrecorded, came with husband Simon LeBlanc of Grand-Pré, age 28, and two children, ages 5 and 3. Catherine was pregnant when they left Halifax and gave birth to a daughter aboard ship in January 1765; the baby was baptized at New Orleans on February 20. Catherine died on the Teche the following November, probably one of the last victims of the epidemic that struck the Acadians there that summer and fall. Catherine was the sister to Isabella wife of Charles Thibodeau. Relationship to Pierre Thibodeau and wife Jeanne Theriau unknown, although there is one.

Joseph Thibodeau, age unrecorded, came alone. He died at Attakapas in September 1765, probably a victim of the Teche valley epidemic. Relationship to Pierre Thibodeau and wife Jeanne Theriau unknown, although there is one.

Louise Thibodeau, age unrecorded, came with husband Pierre Gautrot, age unrecorded, and a 10-month-old daughter. Pierre died in New Orleans soon after the family reached the city. Louise took her daughter to Bayou Teche. Relationship to Pierre Thibodeau and wife Jeanne Theriau unknown, although there is one.

Most of the Thibodeau's who went to Bayou Teche with the Broussards survived the epidemic of 1765 and remained at Attakapas. They all would have been related to immigrant Pierre Thibodeau and wife Jean Theriau.

There is an excellent website:

<http://attakapaszgazette.org/vol-3-2014/initial-acadian-settlement/>

by Donald J. Arceneaux that gives an account of the exiled Acadians who settled in Louisiana and arrived in Attakapas in mid-May 1765. The piece provides excellent historical detail, not only about the hardships involved in their relocation, but of the epidemic that took so many lives. He mentions a number of Thibodeau's by name and where they were buried. He speaks of Olivier Thibodeau, son of Charles Thibodeau and Marie Comeau and grandson of Acadian immigrant Pierre Thibodeau, as one of the eight 'Acadian chiefs' who were signers of the Dauterive Agreement at New Orleans on April 4, 1765 and gives a good account of the conditions of the agreement and what unfolds. Arceneaux provides locations and disagreements. His research is a must-read for anyone interested in what happened to their ancestral relatives who were exiled from Acadia but much too lengthy to go into any detail here. However, it should be added that Arceneux mentions the Jean Dugas' family and notes that his wife Marie-Charlotte Godin is the family matriarch; she died during the epidemic. I mention Marie-Charlotte Godin because of her maiden name – Godin. Related to immigrant Pierre Thibodeau's descendants, the children of Walter Goding and Erma Thibodeau? It would make an interesting research project.

Map & Early Days

On the above map, a white star notes the approximate location of the Claude Terriau home, elder son of Jean Terriau/Terrio and Perrine Bourg/Breau-Ruau. That part of the peninsula which juts south into the river is the Belleisle area (in box). Across the river, west of Belleisle is the Pré-Ronde (Round Hill) area (in box) - the peninsula which juts north into the river, homestead of Pierre Thibodeau and Jeanne Terriau/Terriot, elder daughter of Jean and Perrine. The photo shows the southern edge of the Belleisle peninsula (across the river on the right) as well as the northern edge of the Pre-Ronde peninsula (at left edge of photo).

The settlement of La Hève, Acadia founded in 1632 by Isaac de Razilly and his lieutenant, Sieur Charles de Menou D'Aulnay and their 300 men (said to have included bachelor Jean Terriot). The sole evidence of the French colony is a monument in the Fort Point Museum Cemetery to the memory of "Knight Commander Isaac DeRazilly, O.S.J., Governor of Acadia 1632-1635" which identifies the site as the location of a "...French Chapel built in 1632, and destroyed by fire in 1650."

Port Royal, Acadia was founded in 1605 by Pierre Dugus de Monts and re-established later in 1635 by Sieur D'Aulnay and the first Acadian families including Jean and Perrine Terriot.

Port Royal on the Rivière-aux-Dauphins is present-day Annapolis-Royal on present-day Annapolis River. The ancestral homestead of Jean and Perrine Terriot was approximately 10km east of Port-Royal on the north shore of the river. Their neighbors were the Dupuis', Lenoue's and Blanchard's to the east, and the Savoie's, Gudet's and Martin's to the west.

Across the Rivière-aux-Dauphins from Jean and Perrine Terriot was the ancestral homestead of Pierre Thibodeau, their son-in-law, and their daughter Jeanne.

Note: There are many spelling variations of Terriau and Thibodeau.

Land Ownership

Pierre Thibodeau

Immigrant Pierre Thibodeau acquired a large land concession on the river du Dauphin, near Port Royal in 1654. The area was known as Pré Ronde or Village des Thibeau. It is situated ten kilometers/about 6 miles up the mouth of the river, in the heart of the valley of Port Royal. The site is known today as Round Hill, Nova Scotia. This part of the land is known to be one of the first regions in North America inhabited continuously by French origin families. Immigrant Pierre Thibodeau, being a miller, built a grist mill on his marshland farm and a sawmill on his brookside holdings named "Des-Loups-Marins" (rough translation "sea lions/wolves").

In 1698, Pierre Thibodeau, along with 4 of his sons Pierre, Jean, Antoine and Michel, and a friend founded Chipoudy (New Brunswick). They built a mill on the site now named Mill creek. They were also involved in the development of Trois-Rivieres (region of Chipoudie, Petcoudiac and Memramcouche).

Tradition says that Pierre obtained from the Governor of the Nouvelle France, Mr de Frontenac, on June 20, 1695, a concession of the domain of Kaouaskagouche (Vraskagache), between Mont Desert and Majois in Acadia (today Mount Desert and Machias in the state of Maine). This territory, if correct, is probably the Narraguagus River, with a second possibility it is the Pleasant River. It measured 2 leagues (8 km/5 miles) of depth and 1 league (2 km/1.25 miles) on each side of the river, including islands. Concession was certified by royal decret issued at Versailles. It is also said that the land was on the Kennebec River but that is less likely but, none-the-less, possible, given the fluidity of the French/English boundary at that time. However, if the landmarks of Mount Desert and Machias are correct, the land could not have been on the Kennebec.

Land Ownership General

The first land grantees in Madawaska (New Brunswick) included both banks of the St John River from the mouth of the Madawaska down to Green River. Some of the grantees of Acadian origin on the northeast side (now New Brunswick) were direct family members or relatives.

A Land Grant was issued on 1 Oct 1790 and registered 15 Oct 1790. It shows John Baptist Tibidea Sr with Lot 2, Div 1, 223A; Etienne Tibideau, Lot 1, Div 2, 227A; Joseph Tibideau, Lot 2, Div 2, 220A; John Baptist Tibideau, Jr, Lot 3, Div 2, 270A.

In Aug 1794, Gregoire Tibideau acquired Lot 6, Tract 4; Fierement Tibideau, Lot 1, Tract 5; Oliver Tibideau, Jr, Lot 2, Tract 5; Jean Tibideau, Lot 3, Tract 5.

Note: Names are spelled here as shown on the websites.

Note: the Upper St. John website has an incredible amount of information on the Upper St. John Valley, along with sources - truly a most wonderful site to explore. These land grants are on this site in their entirety, along with what was expected of the settlers. You can also find Census records and much, much more.

A map of St. Basile in 1792 on both sides of the St. John River has been found and is under the Map Section of this Book; whether authentic or not is unknown but land assignments pretty much follow the above Land Grant allocations. It shows Jean Baptiste Thibodeau, the father, as having Lot 2 on the south side of the river now known as Grand Isle and there is a Thibodeau Brook there. Son Jean Baptiste Thibodeau has Lot 3 on the north side of the St. John River, now in Madawaska Co., NB; Etienne Thibodeau, son of Jean Baptiste Thibodeau, Jr. has Lot 1 (which appears to abutt both the St. John River and the Green River). Joseph Thibodeau, son of Jean Baptiste Thibodeau, Sr and brother to the Jr has Lot 2 on the north side of the river between his brother J.B. and nephew Etienne. No Lot is seen for Olivier Thibodeau, son of Jean Baptiste Thibodeau, Sr. Lot 5 on the south side of the St. John River is held by Louis Sansfacon and Lot 37 on the north side of said river; both are sons-in-law of Jean Baptiste Thibodeau, Sr. There are other relatives along the St. John, as well. It would appear that Olivier and others acquired land behind the river lots and they are not shown on this map.

A larger, government map may be available - Map: St. Basile GRPA 033; perhaps from Service New Brunswick, 121 rue de l'eglise st., Edmundston, NB E3V 3L3; website: www.snb.ca.

The Mazerolle Land grant was given in 1794 on North Bank or St. David, Madawaska, ME to the first settlers of Madawaska; there were about 77 lots of about 200A each; Jean Baptiste Thibodeau was on the list of those receiving a lot.

George Upham Hay, notes in Canadian history readings: for schools, libraries, and general ..., Volume 1 the incorrect spellings of the grantees:

".....The settlement at Madawaska was not a purely Acadian settlement. It had its Canadian element even at the first but the Acadians were largely in the majority and may fairly claim to have been the founders of the settlement. In the plan of the first grant made in 1790, the names of the grantees are in most cases incorrectly written while in the plan of the second grant of 1794 the spelling is better. In the list of names that follow the proper spelling is restored. For the division of the original settlers into two classes according to the family origin as Acadian or Canadian, I am greatly indebted to my Acadian friends Placide P Gaudet and Prudent L Mercure.

The first grant (1790) it must be remembered included both banks of the river St John from the mouth of the Madawaska down to Green River The grantees of Acadian origin on the New Brunswick side were Louis Mercure, Michel Mercure, Joseph Mercure, Alexis Cyr, Olivier Cyr, Marie Marguerite Daigle, Jean Baptist Daigle, Paul Cyr, Pierre Cyr, Alexandre Cyr, Jean Baptiste Thibodeau jr, Joseph Thibodeau, Etienne Thibodeau. The grantees of Acadian origin on the American side of the river were Simon Ile ber,t Paul Potier, Jean Baptiste Mazerolle jr, Francois Cyr jr, Joseph Daigle sr, Joseph Daigle jr, Jacques Cyr, Francois Cy,r Firmin Cyr sr, Jean Baptiste Cyr jr, Michel Cyr, Joseph Hebert, Antoine Cyr, Jean Martin, Joseph Cyr jr, Jean Baptiste Cyr sr, Firmin Cyr jr, Jean Baptiste Thibodeau sr, Joseph Mazerolle.

The second grant made in the year 1794 extended from Green River with many vacancies to a little below Grand River. Some six names that occur in the former grant '1' are omitted from the enumeration that follows. Several of the settlers in this grant are known to have formerly lived at French Village on the Kennebecasis. The names of those Acadians who settled on the east side of the St John are as follows Olivier Thibodeau, Baptiste Thibodeau, Joseph Theriau It, Joseph Theriault jr, Olivier Thibodeau jr, Jean Thibodeau, Firmin Thibodeau, Ililarion Cyr, and there seem to have been but two Canadians viz Louis Ouellette and Joseph Souci Those Acadians who settled on the American side are as follows Gregoire Thibodeau, Louis LeBlanc, Pierre Cormier, Alexis Cormier, Baptiste Cormier, Francois Cormier, Joseph Cyr jr, Firmin Cyr, Joseph Cyr, Francois Violette sr, and Augustin Violette and there are three Canadians viz Joseph Michaud, Baptiste Charette, and Germain Soucie

Another description of the Acadians who received grants of their lands above the present Fredericton from the first governor of New Brunswick:

Beginning on the east side of the St. John at Crock's (Cyr's) Point, on the north side of the Madamkeswick river, were, --- Peter Tibido (Pierre Thibodeau), Joseph Sayre (Cyr), Oliver Tibido jr., Oliver Tibido sen., John (Jean) Tibido, Francis Cormier, Baptiste Cormier, Peter Cormier, Amant Cormier, and Fearman Sayre...

Opposite Madamkeswick Island on the same side were, --- Matureau Gautreau, Pierre Muzerolle, Alex. Tibido, and Joseph Roy...

Further down opposite Sugar Island were, --- Louison Lejeune, Baptist Vinneau, Baptiste Daigle, Francis Gaudin, Pierre Pinette, and Francis Aubere (Hebert)....

Further down below Sugar Island were, --- Joseph Young (Lejeune), Cain Kessey (Quercy or Casey), Matura Muzzeroll, and Paul Muzzeroll....

Opposite the lowest of the islands were, --- Alex. Goodine (Gaudin), John Baptiste Goodine, Charles White (Leblanc), Augustus White, Amant Cormie, and Francis Cormie....

On the west side of the St. John below the Soodawabscook now Long's Creek were, --- Thomas Costin, Alex. Bourgoin, and James Goodwin (Gaudin).....

Below, opposite Sugar Island, were, --- Daniel Goodwin (poss Gaudin), James Martin and John Martin....

The islands below the mouth of the Madamkeswick, with the exception of Auc-paque Island, were inhabited by the Acadians.

During a law-suit regarding the ownership of Finucane or Sugar Island, Governor Carleton wrote to England in 1789, --- "Chief Justice Finucane purchased the improvements of several Acadians who had lived, some of them twenty years thereon."....

Some of the names of the loyal Acadians given in Studholme's report occurred in the first French census taken at Port Royal in Acadia in 1671 namely, Herbert, Terrieau, Martin, Morin, Cyr, Thibeau, Landry, Doucet, Leblanc, Vigneau, Kuessy, and Gauternot....

Among the French names in the parish register kept by Father Bailly at Auc-paque (Aukpaque or Auk Paque Island) during the year 1767-8, are, --- Joseph Martin, Jean Martin, Louis Mercure, Michel Mercure, Jean-Baptiste Daigle, Oliver Thibideau, Jean Thibideau, Joseph Terriot, Ignace Caron, Joseph Cyr, Pierre Pinette, Francois violette, Joseph Roi, Daniel Goodine, Paul Potier, Francis Cormier, Jacques Cormier, Jean-Baptiste Cormier, Pierre Hebert, and Louie le Jeune....

Following is a quotation from a letter written by Governor Carleton of New Brunswick to Lord Dundas in the year 1791, --- "It may not be unreasonable to add on this occasion, that the Acadians, of whom the settlement at Madawaska is composed and who have formerly resided in different parts of the country, have shown at all times a decided predeliction for the British Government."....

From a Piece by C. Gagnon

"The first settlement was made opposite the mouth of the Madawaska River and because of this, the whole region became known as the Madawaska Territory. It was in June 1785, that the first group which had just left St. Ann went up the St. John River and founded the settlement of Madawaska. The first comers settled not far from the present site of St. David's Church [in the city of Madawaska. This can be called the origin of the colony. These are the names of the first settlers on the south shore of St. John River as they appear on the official list sent by the Honorable J. Odell to the commissary of the colony: Pierre Duperré, Paul Potier, Joseph Daigle, Baptiste Fournier, Joseph Daigle, Jr., Jacques and François Cyr, Firmin and Antoine Cyr, Alexander Ayotte, Baptiste Thibodeau, and Louis Sampson. Here the Acadians lived a hard and crude life. They had no money for trade and were forced to live by their own industry and ingenuity, as their ancestors had done. They were their own blacksmiths and outfitters."

Pierre Thibodeau

b 1624 or 1631; possibly Marans, Poitou, France; d 26 Dec 1704, Prè Ronde, Acadia;
bu St. Jean Baptiste, Port Royal, Acadia

Compiled by Leslie G. Poole

Mother of Pierre's 8th great-granddaughters, Elise Beth and Deborah Ann Thibodeau

Immigrant Pierre Thibodeau (various surname spellings) was a miller, a settler, and the first of the surname Thibodeau to settle Acadia. Pierre, born 1624 or 1631, possibly in Marans, Poitou, France, was a young lieutenant under Emmanuel Le Borgne de Belisle when he arrived in Acadia in 1654. Many of the Acadians who settled in what is now Nova Scotia came from the region of Poitou.

Note: Pierre's burial record has his birth as 1624 while the Plaque erected in Nova Scotia shows 1631. I shall use 1624 in the following appropriate happenings.

Pierre acquired a large piece of land on the river du Dauphin (today the Annapolis River), near Port Royal (today Annapolis Royal) – in what is now the Province of Nova Scotia, Canada. This area was named Prè Ronde or Village des Thibeau. It is situated ten kilometers/about 6 miles up the mouth of the river, in the heart of the valley of Port Royal. The site is known today as Round Hill. This was one of the first regions in North America inhabited continuously by French origin families. Pierre built a grist mill on his marshland farm and a sawmill on his brook-side property named "Des-Loups-Marins" (sea lions/wolves). He soon became prominent and prosperous with the title of "millman of Prè Ronde".

Around 1660, Pierre married Jeanne Therriau/Theriot of Port Royal and they would go on to have 16 children – all surviving childhood and producing families of their own (quite an accomplishment considering the time period). The 1671 Census shows: Pierre THIBEAUDEAU, 40; wife Jeanne TERRIAU, 27; Children: Pierre, 1; Marie, 10; Marie, 9; Marie, 7; Anne Marie, 6; Catherine, 4; Pierre had 12 cattle and 11 sheep. The same Census shows Jeanne's parents: Jean TERRIAU, 70; wife Perrine BRAU, 60; Children (married): Claude, 34; Jean, 32; Bonaventure, 30; Germain, 25; Jeanne, 27; Catherine, 21; (not married): Pierre, 16; Jean has 6 cattle and 1, sheep.

Note: It was not unusual, at that time, for the French to give their children the same given names; sometimes differentiating them with a different middle or hyphenated name but not always. The English, in contrast, gave the same given names to their children only after a younger child with same name had died. Also, the Acadian French had much earlier Census records which were meticulous in that they provided the maiden names of the wives, along with the names of their married children even if they were not in the same household. We owe them a debt of gratitude. The English on the other-hand felt their wives not worthy of providing a maiden name for them and many times not even a given.

In the late 1680s, Pierre was briefly imprisoned for trading brandy to the Indians and had to pay a fine. Despite this, in 1695, the Governor of New France, Louis de Buade, comte de Palluau et de Frontenac, granted him land between Mount Desert and Machias (then Acadia, now in Maine) with a league on either side of said river (Narraguagus, Machias or Union?) by two leagues depth, to be measured from its mouth, with the islands and islets if any be found there. It doesn't appear that Pierre or any of his children ever settled in this area. Instead, in the late 1690s, under orders from Acadian Commander Joseph Robinau de Villebon, Pierre, now in his 70s, explored the northern shore of Baie de Chignecto, an arm of the Bay of Fundy.

In the spring of 1698, Pierre, now about 74 years, founded the Acadian settlement of Chepoudy on the estuary of a wide river that flowed into the bay and Villebon granted him a seigneurie there. In 1702, Pierre and fellow Acadian Pierre Gaudet refused to recognize the authority of the seigneur of nearby Chignecto, former Canadian Governor Michel Le Neuf de la Valliere, who had granted control of the area to his son-in-law, who claimed the Chepoudy, Petitcoudiac, and Memramcook settlements (the trois-riveres/three rivers) were in his father-in-law's fiefdom. The case was referred to France. In the interim, the King's representative in Port Royal, Mathieu de Goutin, husband of Jeanne Thibodeau and one of Pierre's sons-in-law, sent a report to the King's ministers in October 1702 stating the Pierre had equipped and borne the expedition of the first exploration at Chepoudy and had made a trial planting of wheat, which grew well. He added that Pierre had adequate children to develop the settlement and a grist-mill and sawmill, both ready to run. In March 1703, a decree from the Council of State at Port Royal granted the settlers of Chepoudy, Petitcoudiac and Chignecto 'possession of the settlements they had made'. The final verdict on the legitimacy of Pierre's seigneurie did not reach Acadia until after his death in 1704. To add insult to injury, a decree of the Council of State, dated 2 June 1705, confirmed la Valliere's claim.

Pierre and Jeanne's nine daughters married into the Landry, Lejeune, Robichard, Boudrot, de Goutin, Le Borgne de Belisle, D-Amours de Louvieres and Bourgeois families. His sons married into the Bourg, Hebert, Prejean, Aucoin, Dugas, and Comeau families.

It appears that three of Pierre's nine daughters remained close by the original Pre Ronde family settlement (also known as Village of Thibodeau) – Marie Robichard, Jeanne DesGouttins and Cecile LeBorgne. Alfred Bergeron speaks of the human geography of Acadians, describing the communal basis of Acadian villages as being a cluster of homes about a patriarchal residence. Sons erected their homes on the periphery of a circle around their father's homes, affecting a sort of ethnic clan in the structure of each Acadian village. Genealogical records appear to show that Pierre's original homestead came to be surrounded by the homesteads of four sons – Antoine being one; Jean Baptiste, Claude and Michel are likely the remaining three.

Pierre died on December 26, 1704 at his home in Port Royal, Acadia, age 80 years. His funeral record states: "Citizen and miller at the top of the Port Royal River and at the place called Pree' Rounde. He received the Last Sacraments and was buried the 27th of the said month of this year [December 1704], in the cemetery of this parish, with ordinary ceremonies. It was signed by padre Justin Durand, recollect and cure' of Port Royal." His wife Jehanne [sic] Terriau, died 22 years later on December 8, 1726 at the age of 73. Michel and Antoine, their sons, stayed at the grave until the day after her death, with the cure' (priest) of Breslay. One more time, the entire colony of Pre' Ronde had the burden of transporting the body to Port Royal in snow and cold of December, and one can imagine the emotion and hardship at the long family funeral procession.

The second generation years of the Thibodeau family have been described as the era of phantom rule. As with the prior English occupation under Temple, the Acadians pragmatically responded to renewed occupation by distancing themselves from their occupiers; the third and fourth Thibodeau sons (Antoine [3] and Pierre [4]) apparently being among them.

Genealogical data infers that Antoine Thibodeau, the third son of Pierre came into the patriarchy held by his father at the latter's death in 1704. In 1707, Pierre's widow and Antoine's mother, Jeanne (Terriau) Thibodeau, divested herself of the matriarchal role. When in 1710, Governor Subercase surrendered Port Royal to Col. Vetch and Governor Nicholson, Antoine stood as the Thibodeau patriarch.

Col. Vetch had removed at least one priest to Boston, where he could exert no political influence upon the Acadians. During the absence of priests in the remaining war years, Antoine Thibodeau would perform baptismal rites over several children who were born in the settlement.

The 1713 Treaty of Utrecht, which marked the formal end of open hostilities, allowed the French a year to remove themselves to other places, but Antoine Thibodeau elected not to relinquish the estate his father had accumulated at Port Royal. For those like Antoine who chose to remain, an oath of Allegiance to England was required. In Dec 1729, Antoine Thibodeau's name, along with 4 of his 6 brothers - Pierre, Jean Baptiste, Claude and Michel Thibodeau are on a list of Acadians who swore the oath of allegiance. The swearing of the oath, however, did not mean complete subjection as shown in a 1731 document where Michel and Claude Thibodeau and other Acadian heads of families refused to have their properties surveyed by British masters.

As happens when people are exposed to one another over long periods, British troops would intermarry with the Annapolis folk and build homesteads.

At some point, the Acadians of the Annapolis River began to cut a road through the woods to Minas and were ordered to stop.

In April 1730, Governor Phillipps secured an oath of allegiance from the Acadians of the outlying areas of Mines (Grand Pré), Cobequit, Pisiquit and Beaubassin, as he had the prior winter in Port Royal. Among these are the second and third generation family names of Pierre Thibodo; Alex Tibodo; Rene Tibodo; Jean Baptiste Thibodeau; Pierre Tibodo; Philippe Thibodo; Joseph Tibodo; Antoine Thibodo; Jean Tibodo, son of Charles; Jermain Tibodo; son of Francis, J.B. Tibodo, Anth Tibodo; Pierre Tibodo, to which were later appended the names of Jean Tibodo and Paul Thibodeau in November 1730.

During the 1750s “Le Grand DeRangement”, over 6,000 French Acadians, including Pierre’s family, were scattered throughout Canada, what would become the United States, France, England and elsewhere. Thousands more would be deported until 1763 when England and France once again made peace. During the roundup for deportation, the Acadians’ villages were burned to the ground and fathers would be purposely separated from their wives and children. Some would make their way back to French Canada, but most did not; if they survived, they put down roots wherever they landed. Sadly, many Acadian deportees died from neglect and harsh treatment. The third generation of Pierre’s family through his eldest son, also Pierre, was involved in this horrid ‘Derangement’ of 1755 – being dispersed in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Maryland, as well as Quebec. French Canadians deported from Acadia would become the ‘Cajuns’ in Louisiana. More can be read about the deportation in the Section “Le Grand Derangement of the Acadians”.

The official name of ‘Cajun Country’ is Acadiana made up of 22 parishes/counties. Like their Acadia Thibodeau counterparts, the Acadiana Thibodeau(x)’s were an early and prominent family. The first of them – 19 members of the Thibodeau’s came to Louisiana from Halifax via St. Domingue in February 1765. No non-Acadian Thibodeau’s appear in Louisiana church records during the early colonial period.

More about the descendants of Pierre and Jeanne (Therriau) Thibodeau can be found in the Descendant Reports in this book, along with lines of descent.

Second only to the Mi’kmaq, it is said that the Thibodeau’s have the deepest roots of any founding culture in Nova Scotia. In 1981, a monument/plaque was erected by the Nova Scotia Museum director J.L. Martin, who furnished the plaque, and by the joining efforts of the Historical Association of Annapolis Royal, and La Societe Historique Acadienne de la Baie Sainte-Marie, honoring ancestor Pierre Thibodeau.

Thibodeau Village has been 're-discovered'. In 1985, Saco, Maine native Richard 'Dick' Thibodeau used a British-drawn 1756 map to locate and identify the site known as "Thibodeau Village" (now Poplar Grove, NS) - the very land from which his direct ancestor, Alexis Thibodeau, had been deported on October 14, 1755 during "Le Grand Derangement" and sent to Philadelphia, PA. In 1760/61, Arnold Shaw acquired "Thibodeau Village" in a Crown land grant, offered by the British to a group of New England planters who moved to Nova Scotia. The Shaw family has owned this land for 7 generations. Each year, the present David Shaw family now welcomes Acadian visitors to their property, which has been farmed for the past 250 years (Shawbrook/Oakridge Farm, Avondale Road, Poplar Grove, Hants County, Nova Scotia – 25 miles west of Grand-Pre on the St. Croix River). The Thibodeau and Shaw families are the only Europeans to have ever occupied this piece of land – which is remarkable.

Note: I have found references to both Shawbrook Farm and Oakridge Farm, so I include both names.

David Shaw was able to identify the location of numerous sites on his farm that he believed were the remains of Acadian settlement. In 2004, David and Joanne Shaw allowed archaeologists, under a permit from the provincial government, to test a feature on top of French Orchard Hill. The excavation confirmed the presence of an Acadian site, now believed to be a part of "Thibodeau Village" and the information from this excavation will help archaeologists and historians gain a better understanding of Acadian settlement in the area. Today, visiting the site has become a pilgrimage of sorts, and not just for the Thibodeau families, but for many Acadians - even those who are not of Acadian decent but who seek a greater understanding of this area and its history.

On July 22, 2007, the Archaeological Land Trust of Nova Scotia (ALTNS) and the Shaw Family signed an agreement to protect a portion of the pre-expulsion Acadian site known as "Thibodeau Village".

The Acadian Museum, 203 South Broadway, Erath, Louisiana received several very special gifts from their 'cousins' in Nova Scotia. Over 200 years after the deportation of the Acadians, pieces of ancestral life have surfaced and were handed over to the museum for safekeeping. Sara Beanlands, an archaeologist from Halifax, Nova Scotia, donated 7 artifacts to the museum: a pipe stem, shoe buckle, two coins, a button and two musket balls found during plowing from the pre-deportation Acadian site of "Thibodeau Village" – believed to date between 1690 and 1755.

On September 18, 2007 at the Dyer Library in Saco, Maine, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation featured a film on Richard Thibodeau's documentary about the expulsion of Acadians and his reunion with the land on which his ancestors once lived. "Expulsion -- The Story of the Acadians," has, also, been shown on Canadian television.

For those interested in Acadia, Maine's famous poet, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, captured the tragedy of the deportation in his epic "Evangeline: A Tale of Acadie." He describes the horror as, "Naught but tradition remains of the beautiful Village of Grand-Pre." Tradition says that the old man depicted in "Evangeline" is Rene LeBlanc; Rene has ties to the Thibodeau family.

Oakes

Nathaniel Oak(es)

born about 1645, United Kingdom

died 17 Feb 1721, Massachusetts

buried Old Common Cemetery, Marlborough, MA (perhaps)

Compiled by Leslie Poole

Mother of Nathaniel's 6th great-granddaughters, Elise and Deborah Thibodeau

Direct Descent Nathaniel Oakes to Siblings Elise and Deborah Thibodeau

Generation 1

Nathaniel Oak(es) was born about 1645 in the United Kingdom; tradition says Wales.

Nathaniel married (1) Mehitable Rediat on December 14, 1686 in Sudbury, MA and (2) Mary Holloway in Concord, MA in 1703. The month differs; Massachusetts Town Records say March, while H.L. Oak's book says May 20.^{1,3} Mehitable died in 1702 and Mary in 1733. There is no evidence that Nathaniel and Mehitable had family. However, he and Mary had 8 known children.

Nathaniel died February 17, 1721 and is said to be buried in the Old Common Cemetery, Marlborough, MA.

Nathaniel was one of two known sons born to John Oakes & Elizabeth Harrison. Nathaniel spelled his last name "Oak" and sometimes "Oake". His son Jonathan added the final "s" and spelled it "Oaks". Descendents of the 4th and 5th generations are about equally divided between the spellings "Oaks" & "Oakes".

The following record of Nathaniel's immigration to America was handed down to his grandchildren and is written on the fly-leaf of the family Bible, owned by his great-grandson, John Conant. "The grandfather of my mother was a cabin boy on an English vessel bound for Boston, MA. Nine miles from land the vessel floundered. All the ship's crew, except the boy whose name was 'Oaks', was lost. He, being a good swimmer, swam ashore and arrived in America in about 1660."^{3,4}

Note: If there is some truth to this story, the time would have been around Le Grand Derangement of the Acadians, some of whom came into Boston Harbor, although, of course, Nathaniel was not one of them.

Nathaniel was a farmer in Marlboro, MA. His home farm was near Stirrup Brook. The old house was burned and the present one built in 1780. In 1900 it had been occupied about 40 years by Samuel McClure, being about 60 rods north of the Old Northborough Church. In 1717 that part of Marlboro, containing the Oakes farm, was set off as Westborough and later became Northborough, MA. Nearby, about a mile from the village and near the junction of the Marlboro & Westborough roads is an old abandoned burial ground, where doubtless, rests the remains of ancestor, Nathaniel Oaks, and where the monument of his father-in-law, Adam Holloway, is still to be seen. Nathaniel married his 1st wife, Mehitable Rediat, on 12/14/1686 in Sudbury, MA. She was the daughter of John and Ann (Dolt) Rediat. Nathaniel & Mehitable had no children. Nathaniel married his 2nd wife, Mary Holloway, 05/20/1703. She was the daughter of Adam Holloway & Hannah (Hayward) Farrar. Nathaniel and Mary had 8 children: Nathaniel Sr., William, Hannah, Mary, Anne, John B., Jonathan, Sr., and

George Oakes. Nathaniel served as a soldier in the early Colonial Wars. After King Phillip's War, he was one of the garrison in 1692, and in 1707, he took part in a fight with the Indians as one of the Goodnow garrison.^{3,4}

One of Nathaniel's and Mary's sons was Jonathan Oakes, who added the 's' to his surname. He was born August 21, 1717 in Marlborough, MA. Jonathan died 1784 in Skowhegan, ME and may be buried in the Old Village Cemetery in Canaan, ME. He married 4 times; (1) about 1740, Rebecca Barnard (1725-1748/49); parents Robert and Rebecca (Osgood) Rand; (2) in 1748/49, Elizabeth Wheeler (1726-1750); (3) in 1751, Sarah Wheeler (1731-1761); and (4) on 26 Apr 1762, Abigail Rand (1736-1813); parents John and Abigail Whitney) Rand. Wives Elizabeth Wheeler and Sarah Wheeler were sisters; their parents were Thomas and Elizabeth (Gates) Wheeler. He had two children by Rebecca; two by Elizabeth; five children by Sarah; eight children by Abigail; 17 children in all.^{1,2,5,7}

Jonathan was a house-smith (carpenter) and farmer. He and his wife Rebecca were dismissed from the Marlborough church in 1741 and no explanation has been found for their dismissal but he appears to have left Marlborough about that time. He was the most enterprising and successful of the brothers. Following are a sampling of places he once lived: Westboro, MA (1738-1741); Bolton, MA (1744); Stow, MA (1745-1749). About 1750, he bought a 112 acre farm for £600 on Bare Hill (later called Oak Hill for the large trees there) in Harvard, MA. There he built a 'mansion' (still standing in good repair in 1896, owned by Andrew McNeff) and lived there until 1771 when he sold his properties in MA. He received a grant for a large tract of land in Canaan, ME from the Kennebec Purchase Company, where he settled with his family in 17728, being one of the first settlers. It is said, the city of Skowhegan is built partly on land originally owned by Jonathan. An island in the Kennebec River there still bears his name. He held various town offices, such as trial juror, constable, tithing man, surveyor of highways, tax collector. Tradition says he served under General James Wolfe on the Plains of Abraham in Quebec in September 1759 and that he made the coffin in which Wolf was buried. Jonathan would go blind several years prior to his death.

Jonathan's Will is dated 2 Dec 1784 and probated 12 Mar 1785 and is on file the Lincoln County Probate Records, Wiscasset, ME. Sixteen of his children are named in that Will. His estate was left to his sons Solomon and Levi with provision for the minor children, and five shillings for each of the nine already provided for. The oldest three daughters never came to Maine, the oldest son disappeared, and the rest remained for some years – some permanently – in the region of Skowhegan. In 1806/08 several of them settled in Sangerville, Piscataquis County, and others in other parts of the state, where their descendants are still very numerous. Over 5,000 of Captain Jonathan's descendants have been registered.

Note: This Jonathan Oakes is not to be confused with Jonathan Oakes, Esq who d 16 Aug 1818 and who was Capt of the brigantine Hawke mentioned in Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors in the Revolutionary War Vol 11 by Massachusetts Office of Secretary of State. Also, it appears that this captain of the Hawke Jonathan Oakes' parents were not Nathaniel and Mary and may have been from Malden, MA; his commission was after this Jonathan moved to Canaan, ME. This leads one to wonder about this Jonathan's Revolutionary War history. Anyone interested in following up could probably contact U.S. Sons of the American Revolution to see if they could get the line that confirms this Jonathan was, indeed, in the Revolutionary War. Note that one of the applications above does list 3 generations, indicating involvement.

Jonathan Oakes and Sarah Wheeler had a son John Oakes born October 22, 1757/58 in Harvard, MA. He died June 25, 1842 in Exeter, Maine at the Oakes Hill Farm. John married Abigail Lambert about 1780; she may have been a sister to Sherebiah Lambert who married Millie, John's half-sister. Abigail died 1844, age 85; they had 8 children.

John was a carpenter and farmer. In 1793, he was in Canaan, ME when he sold his half- interest in a saw mill; he was in Lisbon, ME around 1803 and in Palmyra, ME for some years. Around 1812, he went to Bangor where he and his son John Jr built some of the old city's structures. In 1819, he settled on a farm in South Exeter, ME – known as Oaks Hill, where he died at age 85.

John was a Private during the War of 1812 and served 5 years - 4 enlistments or more - in the Revolution, being employed as a scout, taking part at Bennington and many other battles and once being sent by General Washington from Long Island to Quebec. He and his son, also going by John, were on a list of 191 men who were prisoners of the British during the War of 1812 "Parole Signed by Inhabitants of Bangor (ME) during War of 1812". He had enlisted in Canaan, ME but resided at the time in Exeter, ME. He received a Revolutionary War Land Grant of 200 acres and a pension of $96, which began on April 4, 1818, although not placed on the roll until April 8, 1819. John's widow Abigail Oakes, residing in Exeter, applied for a widow's pension but was rejected as she was not a widow at the date of the Act. Many dates and details and his pension petitions are somewhat confused in the Massachusetts Archives.

John is listed on the Compiled Census and Census Substitutes Index, 1800-1890; ME 1840 Pensioners List; living in Exeter, Penobscot, ME, age 84 years. On the 1840 ME Census, he is listed as Jon Oakes, b about 1756, age 84 years, veteran, residing in Exeter, ME.

It is said that although fond of his grog, he was a zealous Baptist and meetings were often held in his barn. He was noted for his Revolutionary anecdotes. The old veteran was widely known and liked. His descendants are numerous in eastern and northern ME. It is said that John's obituary was published in Bangor papers and "Lines on the Death of John Oakes" are found in the works of ME poet David Barker.^{3,5,6}

Note: This compiler contacted Elizabeth Stevens, Bangor Public Library, January 2014 but Elizabeth's search for John's obituary was not successful.

LINES ON THE DEATH OF JOHN OAKS

Another veteran sinks to rest,
His earthly pilgrimage is o'er.
His last dread battle now is fought
And he has made a happier shore.
We could but weep as to the tomb
We bore the cold and pulseless frame
Of him who bled at Bennington,
When liberty was but a name.
No clash of arms nor cannon's roar.
Nor Freedom's call nor battle's din
Can wake him from that lasting sleep,
Nor tempt him back to earth again.

Though he has gone to that last bourne
From which no traveler returns.
His noble deeds and name will live
While Freedom's lighted altar burns.
Upon a nation's grateful heart
They're written down by memory's pen,
And time shall never dare erase
The deeds of patriotic men.
When recollection leaves her throne.
When Liberty and life are not,
When ancient chaos holds its reign,
Then veterans shall be forgot.

by David Barker (from Poems by David Barker with historical sketch by Honorable John E. Godfrey, pg 268)

Generation 4

One of John and Abigail's sons was Electrious/Alexis Oakes. He was born between 1786 and 1791 perhaps in Canaan, ME. He died in September 1870 in St. Francis, New Brunswick. He married Marie Henriette Lavigne on August 17, 1818 in Bathurst, Gloucester Co, New Brunswick and they had 13 known children. Marie Henriette Lavigne was born May 5, 1799 in Bathurst, New Brunswick and died 1887 in St. Francis, New Brunswick, the daughter of Jean and Marie Modeste (Hache) Lavigne. More can be found on the Hache-Gallant family in their Section of the Thibodeau Book both compiled by Leslie Poole

Electrious was English and came to Bathurst, New Brunswick from Maine before 1818. Although tradition says his wife Marie Henriette Lavigne was half Native American Indian, no evidence has been found to prove that to be so. However, it appears that her maternal 3rd great-grandfather may have married a MicMac in Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, as noted on Michel Hache-Gallant's baptism record. Nothing has been confirmed.

Electrious Alexis served 9 months in the War of 1812 under General James Wilkinson; they helped recapture Detroit from the British. After the war, Alexis was granted 200 acres of land in northern Maine on the west side of Glazier Lake, known as the 'Oakes Farm'. Glazier Lake straddles St. Francis, Aroostook, ME and St. Francis, Madawaska, NB, Canada.³ It can get a bit confusing when talking about northern Maine and New Brunswick, due to boundary changes and areas on both sides of the border with the same names. Most of Electrious' children married French Canadians.

In the 1820s or 30s, Electrious moved his family to Madawaska, on the St. John River. When the line was run between the United States and Canada after the 1842 Webster-Ashburton Treaty, his farm ended up on the Canadian side. The family remained in Canada and it is said he was baptized in the St. Francis, New Brunswick Catholic church in 1870, shortly before his death.

Electus[sic] Oakes settled in Val Oakes, NB in 1827.⁹ This community is located on the east side of the St. John River, 2.3 mi/3.78 km east of Connors, on the road to Pelletier's Mill, Saint-François Parish, Madawaska Co, New Brunswick. It is unknown how the community of Val Oakes got its name.

The 1871 Mortality Census of St. Francis, New Brunswick shows "Electrons Okes", male, age 80, born about 1791 in the United States, married, Catholic, died September, cause of death Gruvil (possibly Gravel-kidney stones). This mortality

Census has no day and month it was enumerated but they are normally done Apr-Jun. The form starts in Jul and runs through Jun, indicating Jul 1870-Jun 1871; therefore, Electrius would have died in 1870.5

There was a wooden grave marker/headstone in a potato field as late as 2005 but where is unknown. It has carvings of an Indian head and teepee, so it appears Electrius or Henrietta was of Native Indian descent or at least the 'carver' thought so. There is little proof on Native heritage unless you go back to the immigrant on Oakes' wife's side who landed in Canada for a possible connection; Oakes, himself, appears to be of English stock. Could this headstone have been in the area reserved for a burying ground in Pelletier Mills, Madawaska Co, New Brunswick - east of Lot N Caleb E Slocomb, west of Lot P and north of Lot O George Young, Young's lot being on the St. John River? Below are 2 other thoughts on his burial.

An Email from Brandy Plourde: "Leslie,This is my husband's family that I have researched.....here is what I know of the marker per Allen Jackson: That is what has been called the reclaimed Cemetery. About 1982 the provincial Government of New Brunswick granted the application to have that spot brought back to a cemetery. The plea for this to the Government was proposed by a group of people,... that included quite a few of the McBreairty heirs here in the Allagash. Darrell McBreairty, his mother and her family members were instrumental in getting this approved and some sort of marker put there. I do not know who did the marker, but Darrell would if anyone would. It is along the St. John River in, I do believe, Connors, New Brunswick....My husband's line is Electrus, his daughter Helen, Elizabeth Thibodeau, Elise Ouellette, Louis Plourde, Duane Plourde, and Christopher Plourde

An Email from and telephone call to Darrell McBreairty of Allagash, Maine in November 2013: ".... the wooden grave marker is no longer in existence. It had been carved by a family member and he believed it had been erected on what is/was the Langley land on the St. John River, St. Francis, Madawaska Co, New Brunswick, Canada. The Langley's had been cultivating their land but tradition goes that a section of that tilled land had been the small cemetery of the Oakes family. It was agreed that the Langley's would no longer cultivate the supposed burial site and the marker was erected there but years took its toll on the wooden headstone and may have tumbled down the bank into the St. John River."

One of Electrius and Henriette's daughters was Sarah Christine Oakes. She was born August 17, 1831 in St. Francis, ME and died of 'dropsy' on November 17, 1897 in Carroll, ME. She married Fabian B. Thibodeau on October 13, 1845 at St. Luce in Frenchville, ME. They had 11 known children: David F, Joseph, Olive, Ellen, Frederic, Fabian Gordon, Louis N, Electus, Linnus, Amy V, and Eliza B.

Fabian was born March 23, 1823 in Green River, Madawaska Co, New Brunswick, son of Joseph David and Celeste (Cyr) Thibodeau and he died of 'apoplexy cerebral' on September 26, 1903, probably in Carroll, ME. He was a farmer. More about Fabian's ancestors can be found in the Thibodeau sections of the Thibodeau Book compiled by Leslie G. Poole.

Both Sarah Christine and Fabian B. are buried in the Lindsay Cemetery, Carroll, ME.

Sarah Christine and her sister Helene "Ellen" Oakes married brothers; Helen's husband was Fulgence Jean Thibodeau.

It appears that Sarah Christine and her sister Henriette Oakes who married

Germain Pelletier had a double wedding ceremony, as both were married on the same date and in the same church.

One of Sarah's brothers Alexis Electrius Oakes was born in 1821. In 1899, he was charged with the murder of his son Oliver in Sheridan, ME. Alexis Electrius' trial was later reviewed and he was released in 1901, a frail and broken man. He died in 1906. His wife Angeline Desange Correau/Caron Oakes died 2 years later in St. Agatha, ME. More about the charges and his trial are in Alexis Electrius' Notes Section of the Thibodeau Book compiled by Leslie Poole and complete manuscripts can be found on the internet.

The direct Oakes line from Nathaniel Oakes to sisters Elise and Deborah Thibodeau now switches to the Thibodeau line with the marriage of Sarah Christine Oakes to Fabian B. Thibodeau. The Oakes line is continued below to show the direct procession from Nathaniel Oakes to Elise and Deborah Thibodeau. The Thibodeau line with Fabian B. Thibodeau – both his ancestors and descendants – can be found in the Thibodeau Section of the Thibodeau Book compiled by Leslie Poole.

One of Sarah Christine Oakes and husband Fabian B. Thibodeau's sons was Louis N. Thibodeau. He was born November 1860; some records say Madawaska, NB, while others say Madawaska, ME (likely the latter) and he died October 18, 1942, probably in Carroll, ME. He married Pert Gardner, daughter of Jacob and Sarah Gardner, on October 30, 1893 in Springfield, ME. They had 5 known children: Bessie May, Louis Myron, Ernest F, Ned Carr, and Carl M.

It is interesting to note that during Louis' working years, he is a farmer but at the age of 70 in 1930 (presumably 'retired'), he notes he is a violin player with an orchestra. Did Carroll or Lee have an instrumental group of which Louis was a member?

Both Louis and wife Pert are buried in the Woodlawn Cemetery in Lee, ME.

Generation 7

One of Louis and Pert (Gardner) Thibodeau's sons was Louis Myron Thibodeau born in August 1896 and died in 1949. He married Alice Dorothy Knights, daughter of Horace and Theda (Leathers) Knights, on November 1, 1934, probably in Lee or Lincoln, ME. Alice was born on November 1, 1904 in Lee, ME; she died of intestinal/colon cancer on May 22, 1960 at Workman's Hospital in Lincoln, ME.

Louis Myron and Alice are both buried at West Broadway Cemetery, Park Street Extension, Section D, Row 3.

Louis went by the name of Myron; why is not known but his father was also Louis, so perhaps it lessened the confusion. 'Myron' was a farm and casual laborer and at one time worked for Charles Lowell.

'Myron' and his brother Carl married sisters – Alice to 'Myron' and Bessie to Carl. Alice and Bessie died 15 days apart; Bessie passing away on May 7, 1960, also from cancer.

Generation 8

'Myron' and Alice (Knights) Thibodeau had 2 known children. One was a son Stuart Myron Thibodeau. He married (1) June 6, 1959 Leslie Poole (compiler of this collection) and married (2) in August 1964 Marjorie (Worcester) Allen.

Stuart worked for some time for his brother-in-law Walter Goding at Goding Cement in South Lincoln, ME as a truck driver. He also worked as an oil delivery man for Worcester Brothers in Lincoln, ME. He and his family lived on Lakeview Street in Lincoln in the home that had previously been his parents.

Stuart's sister was Erma Dorothy (Thibodeau) Goding who was born July 16, 1925 in Lee, ME; she died January 26, 2014 in a Bangor, ME hospital. She married Walter Goding on 8 May 1944. Walter was the son of George Ernest Goding and Colleen Clay. He was born 18 Mar 1928 and died 24 March 2004 in Zephyrhills, FL. Although divorced from Walter, Erma and Walter are buried together in West Broadway Cemetery, Park Street Extension, Section D, Row 4. Erma and Walter had 5 children: Susan, Jeffrey, Bruce, Dale Myron and Marie – who are Generation 9.

Generation 9

Stuart Myron and Leslie (Poole) Thibodeau had 2 daughters: Elise Beth Thibodeau and Deborah Ann Thibodeau. Stuart and Marjorie (Worcester) Allen Thibodeau had 2 daughters: Elaine Thibodeau and Alice Thibodeau. Stuart also had 3 step-sons by wife Marjorie and her previous husband.

Headstones that could be found can be viewed in the appropriate Sections of the Thibodeau Book compiled by Leslie Poole.

Much of the information on Jonathan came from Oak-Oaks-Oakes: family register, Nathaniel Oak of Marlborough, MA & 3 Generations of His Descendants in both male and female lines by Henry Lebbeus Oak (1844-1905) and Genealogical and Family History of the State of Maine, Vol 4, starting on pg 1664. More on the Oakes family, including Jonathan can be found in these 2 books.

For anyone interested in pursuing the Oakes family back to Nathaniel, Oak-Oaks-Oakes: family register, Nathaniel Oak of Marlborough, MA & 3 Generations of His Descendants in both male and female lines by Henry Lebbeus Oak (1844-1905) is an excellent book with good detail on each family member. It is available for reading on the internet. Hudson's History of Marlboro also mentions Nathaniel. In Savage's book, he mentions that Nathaniel's 1st marriage was in 1686.

Cavaliers and Pioneers; Abstracts of Virginia Land Patents and Grants, Vol 2 notes that a Nathaniel Oak arrived in Virginia between 1666-1695. Whether this is the same or another Nathaniel Oakes is not known at this time but, is likely, another of that name.

Compiled by Leslie G. Poole

Mother of Michel's 7th great-granddaughters, Elise Beth and Deborah Ann Thibodeau

Michel Hache-Gallant (the name was originally Larche; the various surname forms: Hache, dit Gallant, Galan, and Galand also appear), settler in Acadia and Île Saint-Jean (Prince Edward Island), founder of the Haché and the Gallant families of the Maritimes.

"In the year 1668 the 24th of April in the parish of Three Rivers Monseignor Francois Jolin performed the functions...of baptism...for a male child name Michel age of 8 years born in Acadia...the father was a frenchman and the mother an Eskimaude...the godfather is Messieur de la Poterie and the godmother is Mademoiselle de la valiere."
[sic]¹

Note: This document was found in French on ancestry.com and the above is the English translation. Although it does not give Michel's surname nor the name of his father, it is believed by some historians and others that this Michel is, indeed, Michel Hache-Gallant and the father mentioned is Pierre Hache. If that is the case, it would appear that the legend of Native American Indian in the family would be correct, albeit a dilute one. A DNA test of a direct descendant may well confirm if this is true.

On the July 17, 1737, Brother Angilique Collin buried Michel Haché-Gallant in the harbor cemetery; he had "sunk" (drowned) at the mouth of the river due Nord (North River) on April 10 of the same year; he was found the same day he was buried.¹

From Rob Ferguson's article The Search for Port LaJoye : "While crossing the North River in April 1737, a treacherous season for travellers, Michel Hache- Gallant broke through the rotting ice and drowned. At his death Gallant was in his mid-70s the patriarch of a large, extended family of Acadian colonists, and had spent 17 years in the French settlement of Port La Joye on fie Saint-Jean. Besides his considerable progeny, he left behind a farm near the colony's administrative headquarters. Eight years later New England militiamen put it to the torch. Two and a half centuries later, in 1987 and 1988, a team of archaeologists from the Canadian Parks Service located and unearthed a dwelling on Hache-Gallant's land, seeking insights into the first French settlement on Prince Edward Island. Michel Hache-Gallant is considered to be the first Acadian settler on PEI."²

Ferguson notes that Pierre Larche may have been Michel's father and one of Pierre's wives may have been Micmac (Mi'kmaq) (see comment under Michel's baptism). It is interesting to find that Michel is raised in Trois Rivières and moved to Beaubassin, where he stayed until about age 50 when he moved to Port LaJoye. I say interesting because Trois Rivières and Beaubassin are where the Thibodeau family was at one time. Like the Thibodeau settlement in Nova Scotia, Michel's land in now Prince Edward Island (PEI) was the site of an archaeological dig. PEI was part of Nova Scotia (NS) at one time and did not become a province until 1873. PEI's history prior to becoming a province unto itself is a rocky one and well worth reading. Due to PEI being part of NS at one time, Beaubassin would now be in NS and Trois Rivières is now in PEI.²

Michel, son of Pierre L'arche of St.-Pierre parish, Montdidier, Picardie, France, and an unidentified Indian woman, was born at Trois-Rivières, Canada, in c1653. Michel came to Acadia as a young servant of Michel Le Neuf de La Vallière, the seigneur of Beaubassin, between 1678 and 1682. De Meulles counted him as a servant in the seigneur's household at Chignecto in 1686. Michel was age 22 and single. He remained at Chignecto and married Anne, a daughter of Thomas Cormier, in c1690. She gave him a dozen children, including six sons who created families of their own. The family's name evolved into Haché. Michel's sons used his dit Gallant, which, in some of their lines, evolved into a surname. Michel, Anne, and their children probably were the first Acadians to settle on Île St.-Jean, today's Prince Edward Island.^{3,4,5}

The name preferred by members of the tribe today is pronounced MICK-maw & is often written as Micmac. The French also called them the Souriquois.⁶ It is said that the name "Mi'kmaq" arose "...with the defeat of the French and the entry of the English...", implying, perhaps, that the English were more sensitive to the tribe's actual name. It is also said that the word "Mi'kmaq" comes from nikmaq, which means "my kin-friends" and nikmaq was a form of greeting used by the Mi'kmaq in the early seventeenth century and became associated with the people themselves. The Mi'kmaq and their descendants call the area of old Acadia Mi'kmaq'i or Lnue'gati, also Esisgeoagig.⁷ "M'ikmaw" is singular, "M'ikmaq" plural.⁸ Griffiths provides an explanation of Mi'kmaq independence based on ownership of the land that comprised much of greater Acadia--something they never fully conceded even to their French and Acadian allies.⁹

Île Saint-John's (now Prince Edward Island) proximity to Île Royale (now Cape Breton, Nova Scotia) and the Fortress of Louisbourg offered an easy market for any excess agricultural production from the fertile farmland, which could be provided to the troops and inhabitants of the settlement there. Île Saint-Jean was thus proposed to be the "breadbasket" of Louisbourg. Port-la-Joye, which Louis Denys de la Ronde described in 1721 as being "one of the most beautiful harbours that the eye can behold," was also the gateway to settlement along the Rivière du Nord-Est (Hillsborough River, a Canadian Heritage River). The river connected Port-la-Joye to Havre Saint-Pierre (St. Peter's Bay) on the north shore of Île Saint-Jean, which was considered the colony's main commercial and population centre. Several other settlements were established along the three rivers that extended out of the Port-la-Joye harbour, including the Rivière du Nord-Est, Rivière de l'Est, and the Rivière du Nord. Gédéon de Catalogne, a military engineer from Quebec, oversaw construction at Port-la-Joye. Most, if not all of the buildings erected during the first summer of 1720 were piquet (picket) or vertical log structures including a barrack, storehouse and chapel. The construction of more buildings continued through the fall with a commandant's residence, housing for the soldiers, the laborers and the priest, a bakery and shelters for the animals. Life was often not easy. The French and Acadian settlers had to work hard to grow crops and maintain vessels for fishing and received very little assistance from the Comte de Saint Pierre's company. Even so, between 1720 and 1722 eleven private homes were constructed on the opposite side of the creek from where the garrison was established. On the garrison side of the creek stood one private home, that of Michel Haché-Gallant. He arrived at Port-la-Joye in 1720 at 56 years of age with his wife, Anne Cormier and four of their twelve children: Louise, Jacques, Madeleine and François. In 1724 the Comte de Saint Pierre's company fell into bankruptcy and the French settlers who had come to the island returned to France along with the garrison. A few Acadian settlers remained at Port-la-Joye and on Île Saint-Jean, including the Hache Gallants and the Martins. By 1726 the island was repatriated as a crown colony and in 1730, it was returned to the French royal domain. From then on, the colony would fall under the administration of Louisbourg¹⁰

Michel was a literate man who had done well in farming, carpentry and coasting. He owned his own schooner, La Miscoudine, which made a number of trips to Louisbourg (NS) carrying passengers and supplies between 1721 and 1723. The following are copies of various documents confirming his occupations, his family members and residency.¹¹

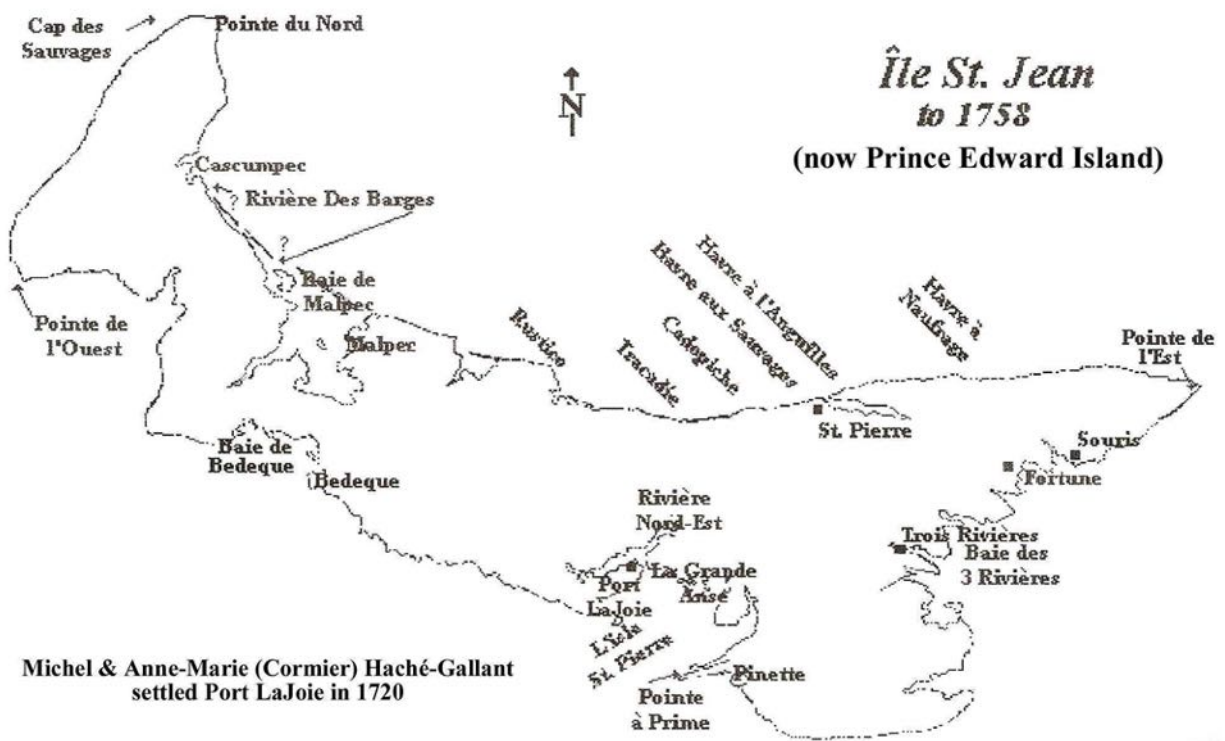

"I the undersigned, Captain of the LaJoye harbour, commanding officer of the ship La Miscoudine (contracted) to transport to Louisbourg in 1721, Mr. deBeaucour, the King's Lieutenant to the Royal Island and all the fishermen owners of the boats and ships confiscated by Mr. DeGotteville on St-Jean Island and other passengers totaling 33 people, certify that I have made the trip and it did not cost anything for me nor for my crew and no costs were incurred for the ship because we left this port with a four to five days food supply. We had to travel for a period of nine days due to heavy winds. Mr. deBeaucour provided the rations for everybody until we got to Louisbourg and he paid for every expense I had to make whether it be for my crew or for the passengers. He also paid for the table he gave to me, for which gesture I felt very honoured, and he also paid for some other small expenditures I had to incur somewhere else. Herewith signed this certificate in LaJoye harbour this 13th July 1723." (signed) Michel Hache.

"Today, 12th August 1727, we, Knights of the Military Order of St-Louis, Company Captain, Commanding Officer of the St-Jean Island,.....having transported ourselves, accompanied by Mr. Michel Galand, carpenter and harbour resident, to examine the mast and the materials we could appropriate for the service of the King..... in the presence of Charle Pinet and François Paris, Acadians and carpenters, who were there at the moment of the visit. Herewith we have signed. De Pensens, Le Normant, Michel Hache, said Galan."

"Michel Hache and Anne Cormier's Formal Obligation Due From Their Children: To pay annual pension of £10 for everyone of the children. "This 17th day of November 1736, in the presence of Father Angélique Collin, 'Récolet' (Franciscan monk) from the province of Bretagne, missionary and chaplain for the King at LaJoye harbour in Île St-Jean, Québec bishopric, acting as the parish priest in this city/town, since there was no Notary to pass the act between Michel Hache and Anne Cormier his wife on the one part and his children on the other part, hereafter named Michel Hache, Joseph Hache, Marie Hache spouse of René Rassicot, Baptiste Hache, Charles Hache, Pierre Hache, Marguerite Hache spouse of Pierre Jacquemin, Francois Hache, Jacques Hache, Louise Hache spouse of Louis Belliveau, Marie-Madeleine Hache spouse of Pierre Duval, who agree to the following: to be known that every above mentioned children agree and are compelled to give to everyone of their parents, their father and their mother, for the rest of their life, the sum of £10 every year effective today. They also relinquish their rights to the appropriation of their father's and mother's succession after their death. The father and/or the mother are free to give their property/goods/fortune forever to the child of their choice if they judge he/she deserve it. Herewith, the children who know how to write have signed in the presence of Phillipe LeNeuf, Knight, Lord deBeaubassin, ensign of a detached Navy company and in the presence of Charles Bourrot, Ship's Captain of the Beaubassin's Lord who signed as witnesses (signed) Michel Hache, Joseph Hache." "Once more, Michel Hache, his wife Anne Cormier and their children have agreed that if one of their parents dies, the children will only have to pay half of the £10 to which they have agreed to above. Herewith, they have signed as above: Michel Hache, Joseph Hache, Marques deRené Rassicot, Baptiste Hache, Jacques Hache, Pierre Hache, Marguerite Hache-Jacquemin." Michel Hache-Gallant's last signature in the Registry Office of St-Jean Island, was on the 3rd of March 1737, on the occasion of the baptism of Marguerite, daughter of Pierre, one of his sons.

Port Lajoie, now Fort Amherst, is at Rocky Point on the southeast shore of present-day Charlottetown Harbour, PEI and in Michel's time, was the military and administrative centre of the colony. Michel's land was along the east bank of the stream and there is a 1730 map of the area. Today, a monument to Michel and wife Anne is located at Rocky Point. A plaque depicting a house and trees has also been installed at the home site of Michel.

This was the property of Michel Hache-Gallant, who in 1720, sailed his schooner here from Acadia to begin a new life on French soil. During the early years of the colony, he transported supplies and passengers between what is today Cape Breton Island and Prince Edward Island. Michel's children later married into the established community and formed the core of the Acadian population in the area. Today, many Gallants in this province can trace their roots back to this pioneer settler.

A Hache family descendant would go on to marry into the Thibodeau descendant family. An interesting bit is that Pierre Thibodeau, immigrant, had a run-in with Michel Le Neuf de La Vallière to whom Michel Hache-Gallant was a servant in his youth. More of the run-in can be found under Pierre Thibodeau's 'Note Section' in his Register Report and Pierre's story in this chapter.

Genealogical records, as well as tribal oral history, reveal that the relationship of the Acadians with the Mi'kmaq was more than economic and religious. Many Acadian families--d'Abbadie de Saint-Castin, Aucoin, Blanchard, Bourgeois, Cellier, Clémenceau, Damours/Louvière, Denys de la Ronde, Doucet, Guédry, Haché dit Gallant, Labauve, Lambert, Landry, LeBlanc, Lejeune, Martin, Mius, Pellerin, Pinet, Petitpas, Roy, Saint-Étienne de La Tour, Serreau de Saint-Aubin--can count members of the tribe among their ancestors. Historian Patrice Gallant has noted that "When their father was an Indian, Métis children sometimes adopted as their family name that of their French mother. That is why the children of" a Mi'kmaq named Joseph, "husband" of Jeanne Lejeune dit Briard, "were known by the name [dit] Lejeune"; Sources: <http://acadiansingray.com/Acadians%20of%20LA-Intro-1.htm> (Quotation from White, DGFA-1 English, 186. See also White, DGFA-1, 876-77. See Arsenault, Généalogie, & White, DGFA-1, for Acadian family lines. See also Bunnell, French & Native North American Marriages, for reviews of known Acadian-Indian marriages. Faragher, A Great & Noble Scheme, 46-48, published in the mid-2000s & reflecting current ethnic sensibilities, emphasizes, with many examples, the role of métissage, or the intermarrying of Acadian & Mi'kmaq, in the cultural relationship between the two people. Clark, A. H., Acadia, 68, published in the late 1960s, plays down the influence of intermarriage: "Gradually they came to a position of mutual interdependence with the French and in places, as at La Have (La Hève), interbred with them to produce small métis populations. However, although some Micmac contributions to the subsequent Acadian gene-pool must thus have taken place, the mixed-blood offspring generally were raised as Micmac by their (almost exclusively) Indian mothers and the physical results of miscegenation were seen much more among the Indians than the French." On p. 89, Clark notes: "Resort to Indian women must have been common enough among the fur traders but it never became an accepted or established practice in the organized settlements, in good part because of the influence of the priests. In any event, dalliance with the Indian maids was more likely to lead the men to the forest than the women to the cornfields. There is no doubt that the blending of French and Micmac genes did get underway in the period [the 1600s] and that this process continued, clandestinely at least, through the remaining Acadian residence, somewhat diluting the 'genetic purity' of both Acadian and Acadian groups (principally the latter)." Brasseaux, Founding of New Acadia, 188-89, makes the interesting observation: "Forged by the eastern Canadian frontier and tempered by 150 years of isolation, Acadian society had become fiercely independent and equalitarian by the middle of the eighteenth century. These cultural characteristics fostered peaceful coexistence with Acadia's indigenous inhabitants, and an economically symbiotic relationship with the region's red men. Group boundaries, however, were rigidly maintained by thinly veiled racism in the red and white camps, and offspring of mixed blood were generally exiled to the isolated Atlantic coast community of La Heve." To be sure, members of the Guédry, Lejeune, Petitpas, & Roy families lived at La Hève at one time or other, but the term "exiled" may be a bit too strong. See Clark, A. H., Acadia, 387, for a possible influence.

Griffiths, From Migrant to Acadian, 36, adds Thibodeau to a short list of families who she says intermarried with the Mi'kmaq in the 1630s & 1640s. The list includes Lejeune & Martin, who did intermarry with natives. However, Pierre Thibodeau did not come to the colony until the early 1650s and his wife, whom he married abt 1660, was a Thériot. None of their dozen children married natives (White, pgs 1511-12).

Some, if not all of the articles from which I have drawn can be found and read on the internet. I have drawn a bit from these works to allow readers of this genealogy to get a flavor of the Hache-Gallant family and to, hopefully, peak their interest enough to read or obtain the above stories and learn more about those who walked before them. The Hache-Gallant family has their own website - well worth a look-see. If you are not a direct descendant, you'll wish you were!

Melanson Family

The following was found on the Internet but the Source is unknown. It is entered here due to confusion of the Melanson family which has also been found with the surname spelling Melancon. This entry may be of some assistance for those researching the family. Confusion also lies with daughters Magdeleine, Elizabeth and Elizabeth Isabelle.

"One family that has been surrounded by confusion has been the Melancon/Melanson family. Melancon is an English name, so early researchers believe they were English or Scottish. Further research has found that the Acadian Melancons were sons of Pierre La Verdure. He married Priscilla Mellanson around 1630 in England or Scotland. He and his family arrived in Acadia with Sir Thomas Temple on the Satisfaction in 1657. One son is thought to have stayed in New England. One son, Pierre, a stonemason, was born in 1632 and married Marguerite Mius d'Entremont around 1664 in Port Royal. One son, Charles, was born in 1642 and married Marie Dugas in 1663 at Port Royal. The Melancons were some of the first settlers of the Grand Pre region. While the name is English (or Scottish), it is now thought that their father was a French Huguenot. The 2 Melancons who settled in Acadia took their mother's surname. Archaeologists in Nova Scotia having been working on excavating the Melanson Settlement in recent years."

The Melanson Settlement is now a national historic site; see Canada's park website at: <http://www.pc.gc.ca/eng/lhn-nhs/ns/melanson/index.aspx> It notes: Melanson Settlement contains the archaeological remains of a pre-Deportation Acadian community (c. 1664-1755). These archaeological resources reflect the family communities settled by Acadians and Acadians' unique dykeland agriculture practised along the Annapolis River (formerly the Dauphin River).

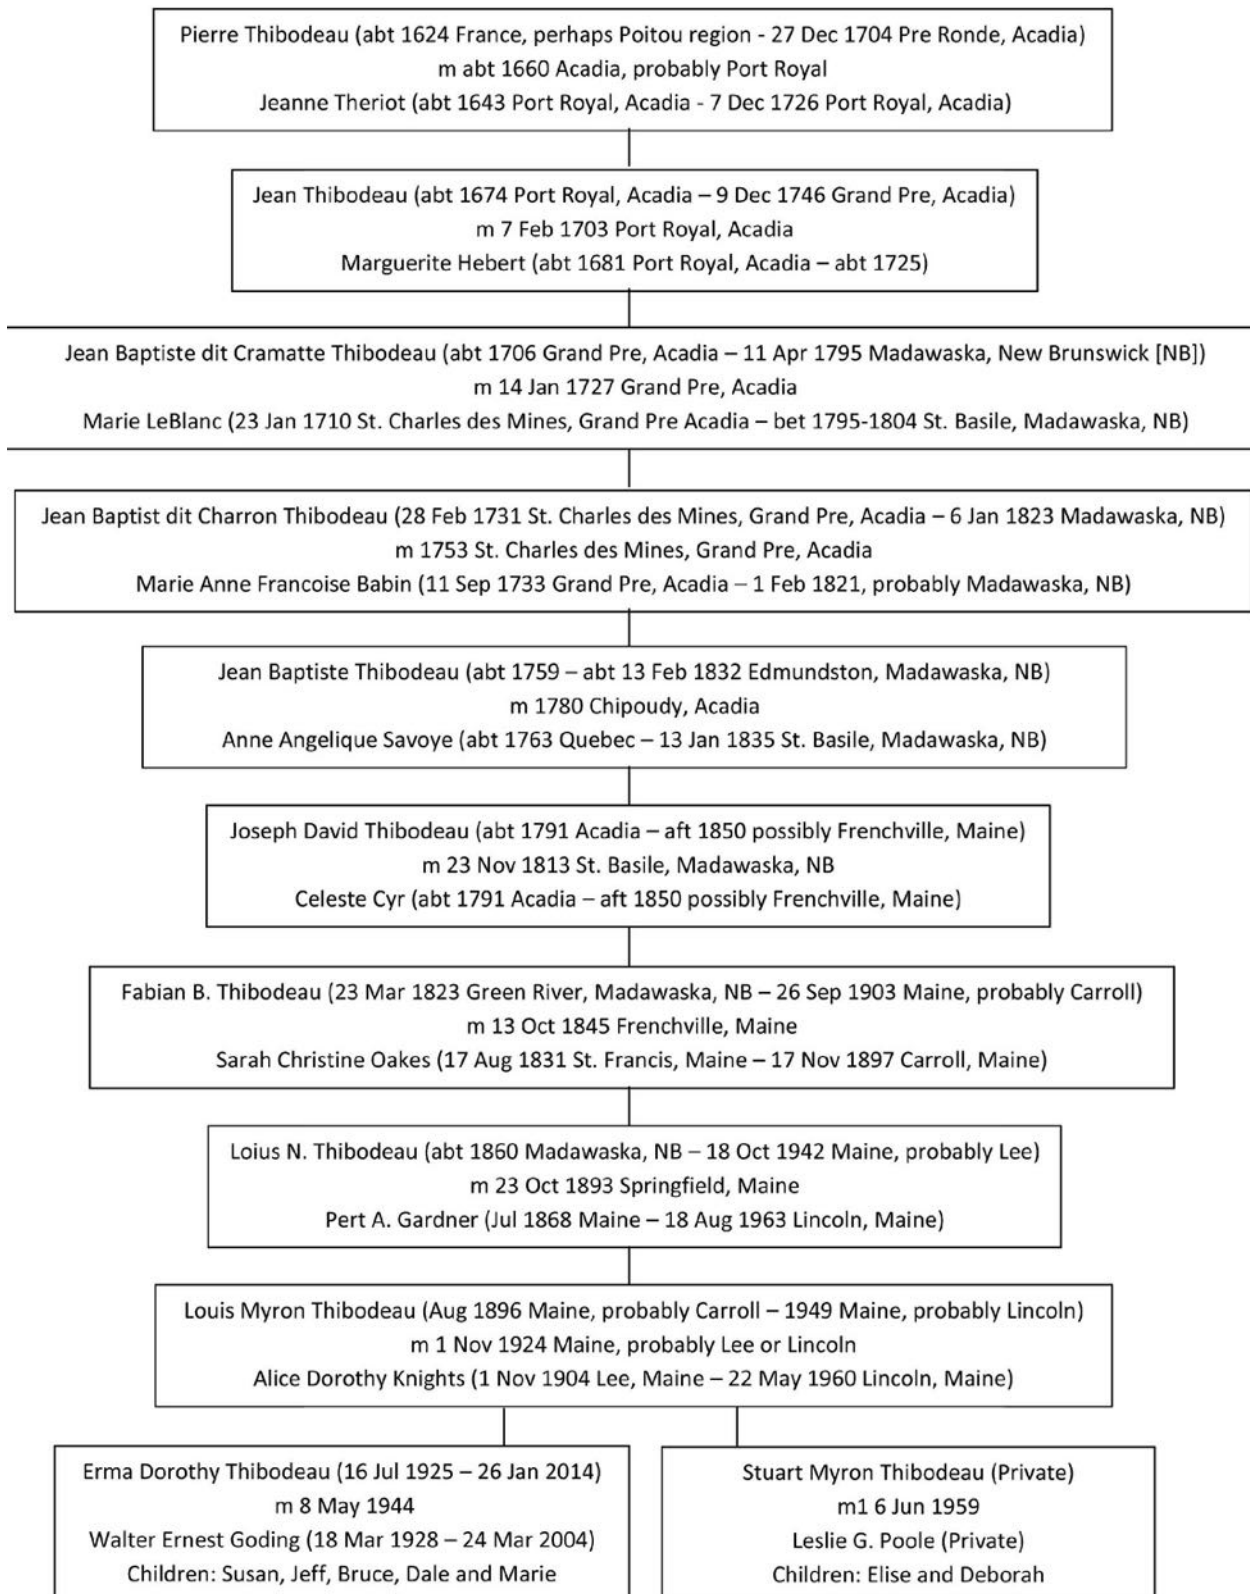

Note that this area is also the area where the Thibodeau family settled.

Some of the Melanson's are related through the Thibodeau line. How Magdeleine Melanson fits into the Melanson Settlement family is unknown. However, Magdeleine (abt 1720 - abt 1771) married Olivier Thibodeau (abt 1715- abt 1806), son of Jean Thibodeau and Marguerite Hebert, and grandson of first settler Pierre Thibodeau, who was granted land in Pre Rhonde, also on the Dauphin/Annapolis River. Magdeleine's mother was also a Dugas, so there is likely a connection of some sort. Magdeleine Melanson and Olivier Thibodeau are the 5th great-grandparents of John Alphonse Thibodeau, residing in Rockland, Maine and this connection might be of interest.

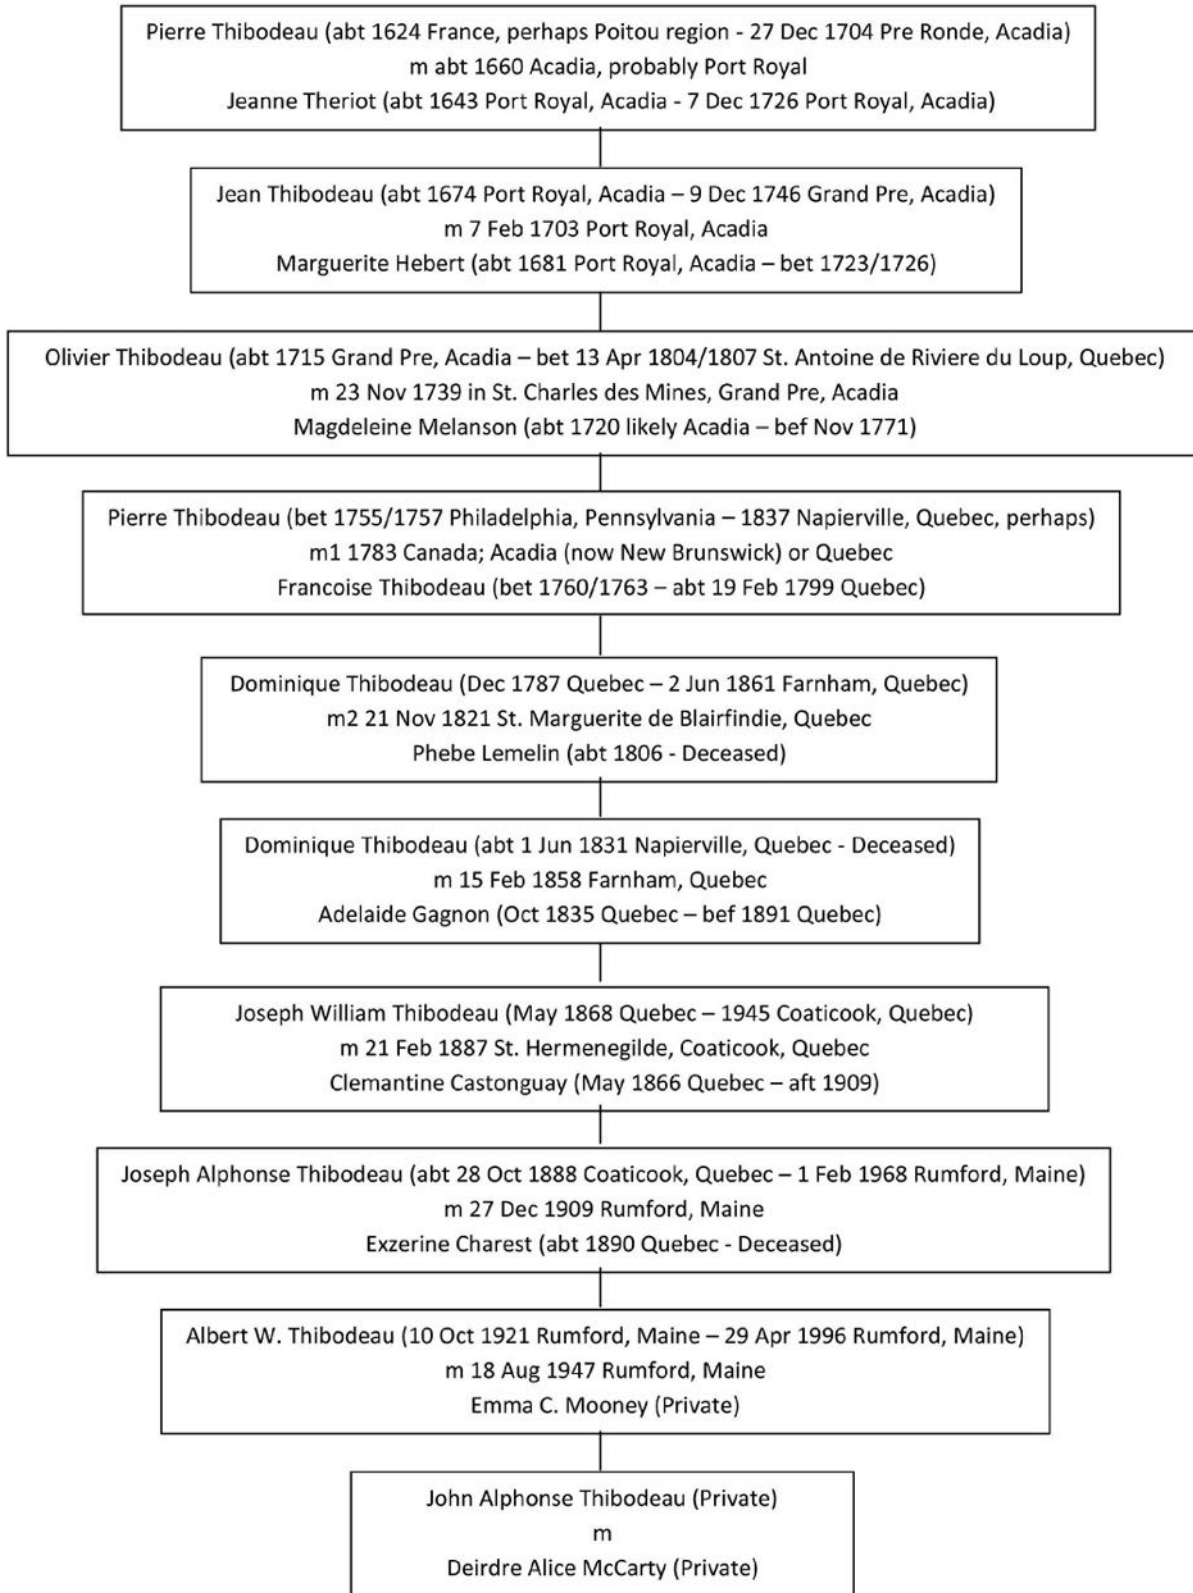

Elizabeth Melanson (abt 1715-1757), daughter of Ambrose Melanson and Francoise Bourg married

Declarations de Belle-Ile-en-Mer (France)

Thibodeau Book by the Thibodeau Family with Roger A. Thibodeau, Chairman

A Violette History

An Acadian Parish Remembered; the Registers of St. Jean-Bapiste, Annapolis Royal, 1702-1755 Public Archives, Government Nova Scotia. This wonderful treasure of early baptisms is searchable on <http://www.novascotia.ca/nsarm/virtual/acadian/> Not only are documents typed but the originals are viewable.

Backwards Consumers & Homespun Capitalists: The Rise of a Market Culture by Beatrice Crag mentions a number of Thibodeau families in the Madawaska area in the 1800s.

Many of the websites noted in any of the sections of this book are worth exploring and reading, as some have very detailed and interesting information.
