

On August 9, at home in Ottawa, at the age of thirty-five, after a long and painful illness that he fought with resolution, courage, and a sense of humour that could never be entirely crushed. Those who loved him will remember the irrepressible boy with the sunlit smile and the wicked slapshot. At hockey camp one summer his francophone coach kept yelling: "Ben' jour knees, Joolianne!" Instantly, his favourite phrase.

He is survived by his beloved mother and best friend, Michèle Hart, his dear brother Hart Walker (Bridget Valsamis), and his father, Jeff Walker. Also remembering Julian tenderly: his aunts Mary-Lynne Reardon (Mark) and Heather Walker, and his uncles Gregory Hart (RoseAnn), Peter Hart (Sheila), Matthew Hart (Heather Abbott), Robert Hart (Brenda Sissons) and Peter Walker (Anne), and the many cousins who shared his boyhood and will miss him keenly. Go in peace at last, beloved son and brother.
